Russians Open New Attack on Finn Defenses

New Offensive Is Indicated on Karelian Isthmus

OFFER IGNORED

Soviet Planes Drop 'Many' Patrols by Parachute

Helsinki — (P) — Tank-pushed armored sledges led a violent red army onslaught on Finland's Karelian isthmus defenses today, apparently timed with a general Russian offensive.

Russian planes were reported by the Finnish high command to have dropped "many" patrols by parachute on the isthmus but defense troops captured or killed the invaders.

After a battle on the isthmus, far into the night, the high command said "the enemy was repulsed."

The communique, covering yesterday's fighting, also reported the Russians beaten back after attacks against Finnish-held islands in Lake Ladoga, northeast of the isthmus front.

The coincidence between the sudden spurt of Soviet attacks, accompanied by widespread air raids, and the new offer of Finnish President Kyosti Kallio yesterday of "an honorable peace" told Finns what, if any, was likely to be Moscow's answer.

Planes Driven Back

Today Helsinki residents sought bomb shelters again when 10 Russian planes appeared on the outskirts of the capital, but anti-aircraft fire turned the planes back.

The alarm lasted from 1:10 to 1:48 p. m. (5:10 to 5:48 a. m., C. S. T.).

It was announced officially that bombing activity yesterday was fairly heavy, with 20 localities, mostly rural, attacked. Two persons were killed and seven wounded, it was said. The Finns charged that civilians frequently were machine-gunned during the raids, which were mostly in south Finland.

The offensive in Karelia, where entrenched Finns were reported holding against the new-style Russian battle tactics, was aimed directly at the seaport of Viipuri, Finland's second largest city, and pivoted on attacks in the vicinity of Summa, 20 miles to the south.

Attack in Far North

At the same time, a Finnish army communique reported Russian attacks repulsed in the Petsamo area of the far north, on the Salla front just above the Arctic circle and on the Lake Ladoga front in the southeast.

An Associated Press correspondent with the Finnish armies on the Mannerheim line said red army infantry charged behind the advancing tank-sledge barrier on the isthmus front after six hours of artillery preparation.

In this new assault, in which 130 fighting and bombing planes participated, machine-guns, armor and riflemen on the sledges protected the tanks from Finnish grenade throwers.

The fighting lasted through the night but Finnish officers said the defense line was intact and that 15 Soviet batteries had been silenced. Finnish artillery was reported also to have scored direct hits on columns of field cannon, tanks, armored cars and infantry before they could reach fighting positions.

Two Russian observation balloons and one airplane were reported shot down.

Ex-Kaiser Wants Nazis, Allies to War on Reds

Doorn, the Netherlands — (P) — Russia's invasion drew the following pronouncement from the famed woodchopper of Doorn — former Kaiser Wilhelm:

"The belligerents (Germany, France and Great Britain) should stop fighting and join their forces to help the Finns. They should fight in one line to rid the world and civilization of bolshevism."

Wilhelm's rare comment was made public by Poutney Bigelow, his American biographer, from a letter mailed to Bigelow Jan. 16.

Union Authorizes Strike Ballot at Chicago Factory

International Harvester Officials Reject Proposal, C.I.O. Leaders Say

Chicago — (P) — The C. I. O.'s Farm Equipment Workers Organizing Committee announced today it had authorized a strike vote among its members at the Chicago tractor works of International Harvester company.

The committee issued a statement by Grant Oakes, national chairman, which said International Harvester officials had rejected a proposal for the appointment of a non-partisan, three-man arbitration board to settle the question of wage cut at the works, which employs about 6,000 men.

Members of the union met with company officials today in what Oakes described as "a final effort on the part of the union to effect a conference table settlement that will wipe out wage cuts at tractor works."

Proposal Rejected

The arbitration proposal was submitted at that time, he said, and was rejected. If a strike were called, Oakes said it would be the first one in the union's two years' existence as a C. I. O. affiliate.

The history of the controversy, as presented by the union, began when Local 101 demanded a general wage increase as well as restoration of the wage cuts, which it claimed ranged from $2 to $10 a week for several thousand piece-workers.

At the last previous conference on the matter, union officials offered to postpone discussion of a wage increase if the cut were restored.

Company officials could not be reached immediately for a statement.

Plans Pushed for 'Liberals' Meet

Secretary Ickes Again Taking Lead in Making Arrangements

Washington — (P) — The plan for a national conference of "liberals" has almost reached the point of naming dates and a meeting place.

In the main the arrangements are being worked out along the lines of a proposed meeting which was cancelled several months ago partly as a result of John L. Lewis' opposition. And, very much as before, Secretary Ickes is serving as a mainstay.

The idea originally grew up in the western and Rocky mountain states. No federal officials, either elective or appointive, were to be allowed to attend. The basic purpose was to build up a bloc of liberal western sentiment with positive specifications of the type of presidential candidate and platform they wanted.

This bloc, which leaders figured could be laid against conservative factions from the south and east to deflect political conventions into liberal channels, was calculated to appeal to the liberal fringe lying between both parties. Leaders say it was neither a third-term movement nor a partisan Democratic movement.

Yet, it might easily turn into a third-term drive or get a party label attached to it.

Norwegian Steamer Is Sunk With Crew of 15

Haugesund, Norway — (P) — The sinking of the 1,560-ton Norwegian steamer Varildi with the loss of her crew of 15 was announced today. The cause of the sinking, which occurred in the North Sea, was not known.

News Service Correspondent Is Facing Trial in Japan on Charges of False Dispatches

Tokio — (P) — James R. Young of Springfield, Ill., correspondent for International News Service, was charged formally today with violating that part of the army criminal code relating to dissemination of false and slanderous rumors. Foreign Office Spokesman Yachikuro Suma disclosed.

It was not known whether the case would come before a civil or military court, but the latter was said to be probable. Under the army criminal code, separate from civil law, the maximum penalty in the event of conviction would be three years in prison.

Since his arrest Jan. 21, Young has been questioned almost daily at metropolitan police headquarters. Suma indicated that when this examination was concluded Young probably would be bound over for immediate trial.

DAMAGES FOR MRS. HAUPTMANN, SON

Mrs. Bruno Richard Hauptmann, widow of the Lindbergh baby kidnaper, and her son, Manfred, 6, are shown in court in New York during trial of a suit asking for $100,000 damages for injuries alleged to have been received by Manfred when struck by an auto driven by Cartoonist Frank Moser. The jury awarded Manfred $23,500 and his mother $2,000. A physician testified Manfred had been left epileptic as a result of the injuries.

Garrison Wants Labor Board To be Freed of Any Part in C.I.O. and A.F.L. Disputes

Washington — (P) — Lloyd K. Garrison, administration adviser in labor disputes, suggested today that congress relieve the labor board of responsibility for settling any disputes between the A. F. of L. and C. I. O.

Garrison, testifying before the house committee investigation of the Wagner act and the board, said that such a "hands-off" attitude might hasten labor peace. He predicted it would not increase labor strife substantially.

"The attacks of the present board by both the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. have injured its capacity to administer the substantive guarantees of the law and have encouraged the

State Fair Sales Act Ruled Valid

Legality of Law Is Upheld in Superior Court At Madison

Madison — (P) — Superior Judge Roy H. Proctor today upheld the legality of the Wisconsin fair sales act forbidding merchants to retail goods at less than 6 per cent above wholesale prices.

He assessed fines of $25 on each of two counts against the Twentieth Century Market of Madison, which was charged with selling two nationally advertised articles at less than cost.

The ruling was made in the first test case since the act—commonly known as the "loss leader law"—was passed by the 1939 legislature.

The Twentieth Century Market planned an immediate appeal to the state supreme court.

The statute was designed to prevent merchants using "loss leader" sales to attract patrons into their stores. Officials of the Madison company said it was aimed primarily at chain stores but that independent merchants were hard hit because they could not compete on a 6 per cent above cost basis.

"The worthy purpose of this law is unquestioned," Judge Proctor said. "The practice of selling below cost results in chaotic business conditions, causes bankruptcies and business failures and leads to unemployment."

Four Balkan Nations Open Secret Parley

Attempting to Find Way To Preserve Neutrality In Europe's Wars

PLAN IS OFFERED

Turkey and Greece are Cool Toward 'Economic Neutrality' Proposal

Belgrade — (P) — The representatives of the four Balkan entente partners, their interests increasingly divergent, gathered today to find a way to keep out of Europe's war—perhaps with some sort of straddle.

A plan for "economic neutrality" under which Rumania, Greece, Turkey and Yugoslavia would sell supplies both to Germany and the allies but only to the extent of normal, peacetime trade was first for discussion in the closed conference.

The plan appeared to be Rumania's desperate substitute for her original request for ironclad military guarantees from her partners, to be invoked if necessary against either Germany or Soviet Russia. It seemed plain that Rumania could not win such promises.

Went Limit Exports

The plan to free Balkan exports to the belligerents at pre-war levels was supported by Rumania and Yugoslavia, according to reliable reports, as the best means of keeping the present battle of trade from turning into a battle of blood.

Turkey, bound to the British-French allies with mutual assistance treaties, and Greece, guaranteed against attack by the allies, were understood to be less enthusiastic.

Rumania also has received pledges from the allies of all support in their power to resist any threat to her independence but these promises have not appreciably curbed her fears.

Her position perhaps is the most perilous of all neutral states.

Trade Decreases

Turkish and Greek trade with Germany has greatly diminished since the war started, replaced by larger sales to the allies. For these nations to return to pre-war quotas might mean severe economic disturbances.

Thus anything agreed upon along the line of "economic neutrality" is likely to represent a compromise between the two northern Balkan states—Rumania and Yugoslavia—and the two other entente members who are further removed by geography from a possible German push.

As the Balkan diplomats and their staffs arrived, a semi-official Yugoslav statement was circulated, saying that "in today's conflict neutrals cannot preserve neutrality by being merely politically neutral but must maintain rigid economic neutrality as well."

Farmer Is Guilty of Murder Charge: Will Be Sentenced Monday

Antigo — (P) — A jury of 10 men and 2 women, after deliberating 10 hours, last night convicted James Blaine Skidmore, 60-year-old farmer, of first degree murder in the shooting of Orville Nass, 20, of Mole Lake, last Nov. 5.

Circuit Judge Joseph R. McCarthy, presiding in his first murder trial since ascending the bench Jan. 1, said he would pass sentence Monday afternoon.

Skidmore received the verdict calmly when the jurors filed in at 10:45 p. m.

He had offered a plea of self-defense, testifying he shot Nass during an argument when he thought he saw something that "looked like a knife" in Nass' hand.

Bonduel Farm Woman Loses Race With Stork

Green Bay — (P) — The stork has been a two-time winner in races with Mrs. Lester Stewart.

Just as her husband braked his automobile to a screeching stop at a hospital yesterday, she gave birth to a rare pound, nine ounce daughter.

The 27-year-old farm woman, who lives near Bonduel, gave birth to her first child, a girl, four years ago at her home where her husband was battling through snowdrifts trying to get a doctor.

Roosevelt Firm For His Budget And Farm Funds

No Final Action Is Taken in House on Proposal to Erase 'Pelley' Letters From Record

Says House Group Made 'Perfectly Terrific' Cuts

Outlines His Position in Interview at Hyde Park Home

Washington — (P) — Members of the Dies committee, meeting behind closed doors, questioned three of their house colleagues today about what Representative Thomas (R-N. J.) has said was "a plot to kill off" the committee.

The three were Representatives Coffee (D-Wash.), Larrabee (D-Ind.) and Ramspeck (D-Ga.). Committee members said they attended a supper party Jan. 9 at which continuance of the Dies committee was discussed.

Washington — (P) — Instead of setting the Dies committee controversy over the "Pelley" letters—called forgeries in secret testimony—a turbulent house debate left unanswered today the question of whether they should be stricken from the Congressional Record.

Representative Hook (D-Mich.), placed the letters in the Record last week. Then the committee declared that David Mayne of Washington had admitted forging them, and Hook tried yesterday to withdraw them.

But Representative Keefe (R-Wis.) blocked him on the ground that the letters reflected on Chairman Dies (D-Texas) and that Hook himself had not admitted their falsity. The letters purported to link Dies with William Dudley Pelley, chief of the Silver Shirt Legion.

The argument in the house which followed Hook's unsuccessful attempt brought from Representative Voorhis (D-Calif.), a committee member, the statement that Mayne once served as a committee agent.

Voorhis, who described the letters as "rank forgeries," told the house of a long and still active search for Pelley. He said Mayne had been recommended to the committee by "a very prominent person in Washington" whose name he would not disclose.

Failed to Find Pelley

Mayne, Voorhis continued, presented himself to the committee last December and said he could turn up Pelley. He was dispatched to North Carolina, Pelley's home, with the committee paying his expenses, but

100 Casualties In Jap Air Raid

Killed or Wounded When Nipponese Planes Bomb Bridge

Shanghai — (P) — About 400 persons, including 100 casualties, were reported today to have been killed or injured when Japanese planes bombed a bridge on the French-operated Hanoi-Kunming railway about 50 miles inside Chinese territory.

Reports reaching foreign quarters here did not give the nationality of the foreigners, but many Frenchmen are employed on the railway, a vital supply line for the Chinese. It links the capital of Yunnan province with the French Indo-China port of Hanoi.

The bombing occurred yesterday. Dispatches said that 27 planes participated in the raid, which resulted in destruction of a northbound train. Most of those killed were believed to have been passengers on the train.

A party of British seamen from the crews of the gunboats Gannet and Falcon were reported to have been aboard a southbound train which was near the scene of the bombing.

The seamen, en route to the coast for home duty after tying up their ships at Changking, aided in the rescue work.

Scram escaping from the destruction of the engine was said to have added to the casualties caused by the bombing.

Railway traffic was reported at a standstill after the raid.

Polish Government in Paris Charges Germans Committing Worst Atrocities in History

Paris — (P) — The Polish government in exile is putting together a story of atrocities in the German-occupied portion of Poland which it says rival or surpass the most barbarous treatment of a conquered people in history.

In its series of "white papers," which are being issued periodically and are to be assembled in a book later, the Polish government describes the land that Germany seized as one of hunger, stark fear, wrecked churches and hospitals, and executions. It says deportations of the populace are conducted with methodical brutality.

Says House Group Made 'Perfectly Terrific' Cuts

Outlines His Position in Interview at Hyde Park Home

Hyde Park, N. Y. — (P) — President Roosevelt told reporters in firm tones today he was standing on his budget and a $500,000,000 agricultural appropriation for the year beginning July 1.

He said the house appropriations committee, which slashed the farm appropriation bill 20 per cent below budget estimates, had made perfectly terrific cuts. The bill is pending in the house.

Volunteering to discuss the agricultural appropriations at a press conference in the library of his home here, Mr. Roosevelt said he saw no reason why some excerpts from his budget message should not be reprinted.

Excerpts From Message

He had had some excerpts typed out, and he read them to newsmen. They said:

"I have carefully checked the individual estimates under these broad categories and I am satisfied that no lower figures can be attained except at the expense of impairing the efficiency with which laws are administered or of working undue hardship upon individuals or economic groups. I refuse to accept the responsibility of adopting either alternative. . . .

"We must not only guard the gains we have made but we must press on to obtain full employment for those who have been displaced by machines as well as for the 5,000,000 net addition to the labor force since 1929. We must therefore avoid the danger of too drastic or too sudden a curtailment of government support. . . .

President Roosevelt arrived at his home here early today to spend the weekend.

Another of the presidential excerpts read:

"I do not believe that the majority of people feel that the agricultural program should be reduced below the figure of $900,000,000, because this figure, in itself a large reduction below the current year, will be barely sufficient to carry out soil protection and surplus removal operations."

Silent On Veto

While Mr. Roosevelt obviously felt those paragraphs applied with particular force to the reductions made in the agricultural appropriation, he told reporters he had nothing to add to what already had been said.

He made no mention of a possibility of a veto should congress enact a bill carrying substantially less than the budget recommended for government agricultural activities.

Farm-belt congressmen have been talking of trying to persuade the house to restore at least a part of the appropriations which were whittled away, but many of them were none too confident of success.

There were intimations that the president, like some of these legislators, were hopeful the senate would do something about restoring the cuts.

Newsmen told Mr. Roosevelt that Senator Harrison (D-Miss.) had said that the government had a moral obligation to provide $200,000,000 for parity payments to farmers. The budget carried no estimate for parity payments, and the president said he did not know what Harrison was talking about.

Mr. Roosevelt recalled that he had stated in his budget message that he would have to recommend additional amounts for farm benefits if hopes were not fulfilled and prices did not go up a little further.

The chief executive had no answer, other than a smile, when a Turn to page 4 col. 7

Towboat Trapped by Huge Ice Gorge in Mississippi River

Hayti, Mo. — (P) — Gripped in a tremendous ice gorge on the Mississippi river, the Federal Barge Line's towboat Illinois was endangered today by grinding ice, with one of its 10 loaded barges already tilted at a precarious angle.

Equipment and cargo of the Illinois, which operate between St. Louis and Memphis, is valued at approximately $100,000.

Captain William F. Weaver said the crew of one barge was "down in the water," and the other end was pushed high into the air by constantly increasing weight of tons upon tons of ice.

"We are not yet greatly disturbed about the remainder of our equipment, but nobody knows what is going to happen when the ice starts breaking up," Weaver said.

He added that the crew of 23 would remain aboard the Illinois in an effort to protect it from damage when the ice starts to move.

The jam, extending from Gayoso Bend near here almost to New Madrid, Mo., a distance of at least twenty-five miles, was expected to begin breaking-up when a predicted rain falls this afternoon or tonight.

Royal Air Force Set to Retaliate Against All Raids

New British Planes Prepared to Fight Off German Attacks

London—(AP)—The Royal Air Force is prepared to retaliate in kind to large scale German bombing of Great Britain expected in the spring, authorities asserted today.

Speedy, fighting planes with machine guns in the tails to permit fire in any direction were described as Britain's means of meeting the anticipated attack by a new German bomber built for speed and performance at high altitudes.

"There is evidence the Germans are pressing construction of fast long range bombers," an aviation source said. He described the new type as a twin-engine, low-wing, three or four and three guns, one in the nose and two in the fuselage.

"With this weapon, the Luftwaffe seems unlikely to attempt a desperate aerial attack on Britain's vital targets," the source declared.

He said Germany probably would use the new bomber in considerable numbers.

Chamberlain Victory

Prime Minister Chamberlain was given a "go ahead" signal by the house of commons last night to conduct the war under his own program as an opposition demand for a special economic coordinator in the war cabinet was voted down.

Limited Leaves for the British Expeditionary Force

Twenty survivors from the 5,625-ton torpedoed Greek steamer Eleni Stathatos reached the Irish shore yesterday and told of having to throw the bodies of 13 frozen comrades from the open boats in which the survivors spent four days in the icy Atlantic.

Crew Escapes

The crew escaped in two boats as their vessel went down last Sunday. The seamen said a German submarine fired the torpedo.

committee that all the letters were written on a typewriter owned by Mayne.

Despite the committee statement that Mayne had admitted forging the documents, Hook insisted he had an affidavit, attested by a Washington notary public and signed by Mayne, saying the signatures were authentic.

Dempsey interrupted to say that the notary public had told the committee in secret session he never had sworn Mayne and did not know him.

Hook said that he still would wait on the justice department.

Hook gave the house notice in mid-afternoon that he planned to ask to withdraw his statement of last week.

When he did so, in a quiet voice, near the end of the house's day, Keefe jumped to his feet and asked whether the Michigan representative had "any mental reservation" as to whether the documents were forgeries.

Up to Justice Bureau

Hook said he was leaving the authenticity of the letters to the justice department to determine.

Keefe declared he did not propose to let the idea get out to the country that the controverted material had been expunged from the record "but a doubt still exists as to a conspiracy."

The mention of conspiracy brought both Hook and House Majority Leader Rayburn (D-Texas) to their feet with objections and

Republican Meetings Held in Aboyance

Chicago—(AP)—Plans for a pre-campaign meeting of midwestern Republicans are being held in abeyance because of the illness of two sponsors of the proposed conference, an announcement said last night.

Major A. K. Stiles, Illinois state chairman, is ill with the flu, and Homer E. Capehart, of Indiana, who was scheduled to be general chairman of the conference, has been taken ill with a recurrence of a streptococcal throat ailment.

Village Officer Heard at Trial

Merton President Tells of $300 Offer for Slot Machine Permit

Waukesha—(AP)—Frank Fritzlaff, president of the village of Merton, testified in circuit court yesterday that Otto Schroeder offered to pay him $300 if he would permit Schroeder's slot machines in the village.

Schroeder on Trial Before Judge

Clayton F. Van Pelt, of Fond du Lac, on a grand jury indictment charging bribery, was convicted with seven other men in 1938 of conspiracy to violate the gambling laws. He is under sentence of six months on this charge, still to be served.

Fritzlaff Said Schroeder Made the Offer in May, 1937

Schroeder, taking the stand in his own defense, denied he had offered anything, but said he had talked to him about installing pin-ball machines in village taverns.

Schroeder Testified He Had Lent $50 Each to Two Merton Tavernkeepers who had his slot machines in their places, with the understanding that the money was to be given to the village volunteer fire department to purchase equipment.

Judge Van Pelt Set the Trial of Anton Vost on a Perjury Indictment for Feb. 22

"We were always cold, we were always tired, we were always hungry."

"The worst of all came Wednesday. There were the dead in the boat—thirteen Greeks. They had frozen to death. We threw them overboard."

"Later the second boat capsized," Ryan continued. "We had the larger boat, and we got the men out of the water. Early today we saw and Irish coast but we were so tired we couldn't row any more. It was terrible."

"A motorboat finally came out—and here I am."

European producers came here to sell their furs, he said. At a December auction, Americans could sell only 60-odd per cent of their offerings he added.

Then, through flexible provisions of the trade agreements act, Fitzsimmons declared, an import quota of 100,000 furs was applied Dec. 31 and made retroactive. As a result, a January sale disposed of 95 per cent of offerings at prices 43 per cent above December, he declared.

In response to a question by Representative Treadway (R-Mass.) Fitzsimmons said his association suffered no harm from a 12 per cent reduction on the fox fur tariff made under the trade agreements program.

An endorsement of the program by the Wisconsin Fox and Fur Breeders' association in session at Madison, Wis., was read to the committee.

These Groundhogs Aren't Even Awake; They're Experiments

Chicago—(AP)—There are some groundhogs in Chicago who, in the course of medicine, didn't see their shadows today. They went right on sleeping—in an icebox.

The groundhogs, along with a few other rodents, were placed in the icebox about a month ago by Dr. David B. Slight and Prof. Eugene M. K. Geiling of the University of Chicago's department of medicine.

From a hibernation study of the animals, the two men hope to ascertain certain facts in the so-called "freezing" treatment of cancer.

A temperature of about 35 degrees is maintained in the icebox. Every 10 days or so the rodents awaken, eat and then go back to sleep.

Decisions Taken at Meeting Of Balkan Entente May Have Strong Bearing on War Trend

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
New York—(AP)—The powerful Balkan entente—Romania, Yugoslavia, Greece and Turkey—is meeting today in Belgrade to consider its attitude toward the war between Herr Hitler and the Allies, and if we could sit in at the secret sessions we likely should have a much better idea of the trend of this conflict.

There was an earthquake yesterday at Mount Olympus on the lower Balkan peninsula where the Grecian gods were wont to hold their conclaves—and there's the makings of a bigger convulsion in this council of leaders to the north.

Publicly there may be little more than reaffirmation of neutrality. Privately decisions may be taken which will have a strong bearing on the outcome of the European upheaval.

Indeed, so much do the Balkans mean both strategically and as a fruitful source of supplies that it wouldn't be surprising to see this rugged zone again become a cockpit for major military operations of the chief belligerents.

Powerful Army

Only this week there was confirmation that the Anglo-French allies had concentrated a powerful army in the Near East to meet any possible German thrust through the Balkans. It could be used against Russia as well, should occasion arise.

Berlin charged yesterday that the British hoped possibilities for spreading the war would arise at the entente parley.

The entente parley. Nazi foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop also declared that neither Germany nor Russia has any intention of carrying the conflict to the Balkans.

Whether the entente will feel reassured by Von Ribbentrop's promise would seem very doubtful, especially in view of what is happening in Poland and Finland. The Balkans have been showing plenty of fear and distrust of the Russo-German brotherhood of late, but there have been no demonstrations of affection.

The unbalanced powers are watching every move of the entente meeting, for in effect the Allies are saying, and the Nazis are warning: "Come with us and don't get entangled with the other side—or we won't be responsible for the consequences."

The Balkan entente was formerly partly to handle political and economic problems, but chiefly to maintain the territorial status quo. The question of boundaries has been of special interest to Romania and Yugoslavia, both of which are fat as butter with lands acquired from neighbors.

Bulgaria Balks

The only Balkan state not in the entente (apart from Albania, which has been swallowed by Italy) is Bulgaria. This hardy land of tough warriors lost territory to Romania, Yugoslavia and Greece, and has refused to join any fraternity designed to perpetuate those losses.

The territorial disputes have caused much friction. This has been increased by the quarrel between Hungary and Romania over Transylvania, which Romania acquired as a result of the World war.

However, fear of invasion by Germany or Russia or both has drawn the Balkans together somewhat. Mussolini also has been taking a hand in trying to compass their differences and form them into a defensive peace unit. It is said that he is prepared to march his armies to the defense of the Balkans against invasion.

Il Duce's interest is two-fold: he wants to safeguard Italy by keeping both Germany and Russia at a safe distance; he regards the peninsula as his sphere of influence. His self-appointed position as guardian is bound to occupy much consideration in the conference.

Strive for Unity

The chief business of the entente parley will be to achieve unity of purpose among all the states, including Bulgaria. They must get set to meet any contingency.

There can be small doubt at this juncture that the Balkans want to remain neutral. This won't be easy in view of the tremendous interest of both Germany and the Allies in controlling these fiery states. The belligerents are pulling at the Balkans like two sparrows with a worm.

In order to meet this emergency the conferees have been considering the creation of a sort of "economic neutrality," that is, the playing of Germany and the allies 50-50 in the matter of supplies. The position of Romania is the most critical of any, chiefly because of her petroleum.

Germany is demanding oil, and the Allies are warning Romania not to give it.

Unhappy is the big country without oil these days, but much more unhappy is the little country which has it. The plight of Romania, which threatens all the Balkans, will figure largely in the entente discussions.

Progressives to Hold County Meet

Plans for Year Will be Discussed at Gathering Feb. 11

Progressives in Outagamie county will open their 1940 activities with an open meeting Sunday afternoon, Feb. 11, at the Appleton Trades and Labor hall, it was announced today by Walter Melchior, county vice chairman.

A general discussion of the year's program will be held and plans made for subsequent meetings. Invitations to attend the meeting will be issued within the next few days to active Progressives in the county. The discussion at the meeting will include the possibilities of Progressives securing census jobs.

CHARGED WITH FORGERY

Ashland, Wis.—(AP)—James Ludack, 42, was under $1,000 bond today for trial in federal court on a charge of theft and forgery of a WPA check. The bond was fixed by United States Commissioner Walter Cate following a hearing yesterday. Ludack is accused of taking a $17 check from the mailbox of Archie Murdock Jan. 13 and cashing it at a retail store here.

CLAIM INMATES BEATEN

Heckel said he was investigating statements by John W. Miner, chairman of the state corrections commission, that inmates were beaten so severely after the Ionia riot that a number were treated for ruptured car drums. "We have rules against that sort of thing," he said, "and if I find these statements are true, the men responsible will be disciplined."

Robert J. Riley, state purchasing director, replied to criticism by Miner. The corrections commission chairman had protested that canned goods and fabrics have been bought by the state from commercial companies in preference to those produced by state institutional factories.

Riley replied that manufacturers in other states had been able to deliver products to their destinations in Michigan at a price lower than that demanded by the state prison industries, which employed convict labor.

Prison Unrest in Michigan Blamed On Small Budgets

Act to End Trouble: Plan 'Change' at Marquette Shoe Factory

Lansing, Mich.—(AP)—Corrections Director Edward G. Heckel, attributing unrest in the prisons to shorted budgets, is preparing remedial recommendations for submission to the state corrections commission.

In recent months convicts at the Marquette branch prison abducted four state officials as hostages in a short lived escape; officially reported "lack of discipline" caused a shutdown of a shoe factory in the institution; a guard was shot and killed by convicts who escaped from the state prison of southern Michigan and rioting inmates of the Ionia reformatory caused damage estimated officially at $5,400.

Heckel said there would be "a change" at the Marquette prison shoe factory, of which Henry W. Anderson of Escanaba, is superintendent.

The director said he had corrected a situation which caused food poisoning to more than 400 inmates of the Ionia reformatory prior to the food riot of Jan. 20. "Steam cookers became warm," Heckel said, and exposed food came into contact with food, poisoning those who ate it. We have corrected that condition."

Claim Inmates Beaten

Heckel said he was investigating statements by John W. Miner, chairman of the state corrections commission, that inmates were beaten so severely after the Ionia riot that a number were treated for ruptured car drums. "We have rules against that sort of thing," he said, "and if I find these statements are true, the men responsible will be disciplined."

Robert J. Riley, state purchasing director, replied to criticism by Miner. The corrections commission chairman had protested that canned goods and fabrics have been bought by the state from commercial companies in preference to those produced by state institutional factories.

Riley replied that manufacturers in other states had been able to deliver products to their destinations in Michigan at a price lower than that demanded by the state prison industries, which employed convict labor.

At Marquette Marvin L. Coon, warden of the branch prison said the unrest he reported to the state corrections commission was confined entirely to the prison shoe factory where 70 inmates are employed.

"We have finished stock on hand sufficient to take care of orders for 30 days," Coon said. "I concluded it would be wise to close the plant temporarily so that we could have an opportunity to make changes in its management that appeared quite necessary."

Valley Council to Observe Boy Scout Week Feb. 8-14

The valley council of boy scouts will join with councils throughout the land in the celebration of the 30th anniversary of Boy Scouts of America. The anniversary will be observed with Boy Scout week, Feb. 8-14.

The Appleton district of the council launches its general finance campaign next Tuesday night, with F. M. Belanger as general chairman. Posters calling attention to the drive and to National Scout week are going up in the city.

Boy Scouts of America was first incorporated at Washington, D. C., Feb. 8, 1910. It has grown to a present membership of 1,307,776, with about eight million former scouts. Membership in the valley council is 1,208, with 181 cubs.

The record of scouting shows more than just camping activities, earning of merit badges, and knot-tying contests. Scouts in several national disasters, most recently the hurricane that struck the Atlantic coast in the fall of 1938, have given invaluable assistance. In that disaster, 80,000 scouts shared the dangers and hardships of relief work.

Heroism in saving lives at a personal risk has brought awards to 2,144 scouts during scouting's 30-year history.

There were 14 gold medals presented last year, 13 for water rescues, at which scouts are particularly skilled.

Ask Police to Search For Jacob Rockenbach

Appleton police have been asked to seek the whereabouts of Jacob (Jack) Rockenbach, about 77, who is believed to have a son living in Appleton. The man married an Appleton woman by the name of E. Killian and lived for a time at Hurley. Information concerning him is wanted by a sister living at Toledo, Ohio.

Income Taxpayers Learn State Law Has Been Changed

Discover 1939 Legislature Quietly Abolished Some Exemptions

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Some $2,000 Wisconsin citizens who opened their mail this week to find income tax blanks sent by the state tax commission discovered that the 1939 legislature quietly stiffened the state income tax law to draw more money into the state coffers. So quietly was the deed done, in fact, that few persons outside the tax commission offices here knew until this week that it had been accomplished.

An unnoticed paragraph in the cigarette tax act passed last summer abolished some of the exemptions previously enjoyed by $2,600 Wisconsin income taxpayers under the 60 per cent old age pension surtax.

Under the new law the surtax exemptions are the same as for the normal tax, or $8 for a single person, $17.50 for a married person, and $4.00 for each dependent.

Get $600,000 More
Under the old law pension surtax exemptions were $10 for the single person, $25 for a married person, and $2 for each dependent.

Curiously enough, because of the increase of exemptions for dependents from $2 to $4, the effect of the amendment will be to favor the married person with four dependents or more. Conversely, the payments made by the single person and married persons with three dependents or less, will be larger, with the result that the state treasury will gain about $600,000 annually.

How the change will effect you is shown in the following graph:

60% Surtax Personal Exemptions	Old Law	New Law	Change in Tax
Single Married, No Dep.	$10.00	$8.00	$2.00 increase
Single Married, 1 Dep.	25.00	17.50	7.50 increase
Single Married, 2 Dep.	27.50	21.50	6.00 increase
Single Married, 3 Dep.	29.00	23.50	5.50 increase
Single Married, 4 Dep.	31.00	25.50	5.50 increase
Single Married, 5 Dep.	33.00	27.50	5.50 increase
Single Married, 6 Dep.	35.00	29.50	5.50 increase

Senior School Band Entertains Students At Assembly Program

A tour of the nations was the theme of the concert which the Appleton High school band presented for the high school assembly Thursday afternoon under the direction of E. C. Moore. A featured number was the overture "Hongroise."

Three Spanish numbers including the well-beloved "La Paloma" followed.

A favorite of the audience was a recent English imported waltz, "Mayfair Ciderella." A novelty number, "Mosquito Parade" demonstrated that the band has good whistles as well as horn blowers.

The program closed with "God Save America," a patriotic song well on its way to becoming a national anthem, according to Moore. The audience joined in whistling the chorus.

Dog Sled Driver Here Tomorrow

Harold Danks, Oshkosh. To Show Team at Jones Park After 1:30

Harold Danks, Oshkosh dog sled driver, and the owner of the only exhibition team of Samoyed dogs in the United States will be in Appleton at Jones park after 1:30 Saturday afternoon. Youngsters interested in the dog derby which will be a part of the winter sports tourney at Jones park on Feb. 11, also have been invited to see the team of dogs and talk with Mr. Danks. He will tell the youngsters about the derby, how they can enter and how they should prepare their dogs.

Besides the dog derby, the winter sports carnival will show cross country skiing, speed skating, figure skating, ice games, bumper races, junior ski sliding and curling. The Appleton Ski club will handle the ski events of the afternoon. There will be ribbons, medals and trophies as prizes.

Entry blanks for the various events are available at the Y. M. C. A. and several sports centers. Other information can be obtained from the recreation office at 3393.

State Labor Law Best in Nation, Contractors Told

Peterson, Public Service Commission Chairman, Is Speaker

Reuben W. Peterson, Berlin attorney and chairman of the public service commission, in a talk before the convention of Wisconsin Constructors, Inc., last night said the 1939 state legislature gave Wisconsin labor legislation which will probably serve as a model for the nation.

Appearing at the convention banquet in the Conway hotel, he said that the general labor bill which he introduced and the measure, written by Assemblyman Mark Catlin, Jr., of Appleton, outlawing picketing except where a labor dispute exists have righted the injustices that existed under the "little Wagner act" of 1937.

"There were things in that 1937 bill that had to be corrected and we made the corrections," he said.

The commission chairman, in describing the reception given the 1939 bills by unions in Wisconsin, declared: "Dues-paying members of labor unions, after knowing what was in the bills written by Catlin and myself, came to me and said they liked the legislation and hoped it would pass, but they explained, they couldn't say so in their union meetings."

He said that the "little Wagner act" totally "disregarded employer, employee, and the general public."

Only 3 Strikes
As proof of the new labor law's effectiveness, he reported that there are now only three strikes in progress in the state. Since the law was passed containing a provision that 10-day notice must be given in case of a strike affecting perishables like farm and dairy products, there has been no strike of this type.

"There have been only four notices filed and in each case, the differences were settled and the strike called off," the commission chairman said. He remarked that the "chairman of the state labor board, told me that the one recommendation he would make regarding the state labor law is that this 10-day notice provision be applied to all strikes."

He said the state "wants industrial peace and under the present act, I'm sure it will get it."

Peterson read the Catlin bill, which prohibits the picketing of any plant unless a vote of the majority of the workers has indicated that a labor dispute exists. He gave an example of the "secondary boycott" which was practiced under the former law and which, he said, the 1939 legislature considered unfair.

Outlines Revisions
The commission chairman then discussed the points of his own bill, explaining how the old act was revised. Outlawing of the "sit-down" and "stay-in" strikes, use of the secret ballot in voting on labor questions, requiring an employer to have the written consent of his employees before he uses the check-off system, the requirement that 75 percent of the employees must be in favor of a closed shop before it can be authorized—these and other provisions of the bill he introduced and which was passed were ex-

Today and Tomorrow

Mr. Hull's Agreements: The Way Forward

Enough has been said in the debate over the Hull trade agreements to show, it seems to me, that the question has been presented to Congress in a way which can lead to no good result. There is being brewed, quite unnecessarily, a tempest in a teapot, and in this dispute, regardless of the final outcome, every one will have lost more than he has gained. Yet there is, I think, a simple solution on which reasonable men might agree.

The executive power to make trade agreements expires this coming June. Mr. Hull is asking Congress to extend this power for another term of years.

Now, the evident fact is that even if Mr. Hull obtains a renewal of his plained, "Is there anybody who will dispute that these are wholesome?" he asked his audience.

He said that even the federal government might use the Wisconsin bill as a model, asserting that "it is a matter of general knowledge that the national labor relations law is unjust and prejudicial and that it was passed by one faction without regard to general welfare."

Earlier, Catlin had spoken on his bill, which he said is misunderstood and misrepresented "by a great many people" and which probably will be attacked in the next session. The bill does nothing more than give the laboring man "a chance to exercise his own judgment," he declared.

J. Harry Greene, executive secretary of Wisconsin Constructors, Inc., spoke at the banquet. Andrew Parrell acted as toastmaster at the banquet and B. E. Wilschke, Racine, president of the organization, presided.

powers, there is no likelihood whatever that for the duration of the war he will be able to negotiate new trade agreements of any importance. The principle of the Hull agreements has been carried as far as it is possible to carry it in the world as it is today; indeed, the unavoidable consequence of the war on the belligerents and on the neutrals must be that their foreign trade will be brought more and more thoroughly under government control. Therefore, in so far as Mr. Hull, or his successor, uses these powers, it will be, not to remove trade barriers in the interests of free and peaceable commerce, but to make detailed readjustments in the existing agreements. In war time there is no possible escape from the increasing regimentation of foreign trade. Mr. Hull is therefore, asking for legal powers that during the war he will not be able to exercise for the promotion of freer trade.

It is equally evident that the principle of the Hull agreements cannot be abandoned by the United States without delivering an almost irreparable blow to the hope of a good reconstruction after the war. If at this time the United States Congress were to put itself on record against the ideal of promoting the peaceable exchange of goods, it is difficult to see where men can hope to find a decent material foundation for the establishment of peace.

Thus it would appear that Mr. Hull is asking for powers that he cannot exercise in war time. Yet if these powers are destroyed by Congress, there will be destroyed the best hope of reconstruction after the war.

So I venture to suggest the following solution: that the existing controversy be adjourned and that a fresh start be made; that the proposal to renew the powers be accompanied by an undertaking: not to negotiate important new agreements during the war; to use these powers only to make specific readjustments in existing agreements to meet special and unforeseen war conditions; to make these readjustments only after consulting the Congressional leaders; and that Congress be invited to set up a standing committee on commercial policy during and after the war for the purpose of studying and advising the executive on the complex questions arising out of war controls, foreign exchange, gold, and the like.

This, I submit, a practical and constructive way to deal with the real question in the controversy. I would put an end to the horrible spectacle of the Republican party committing itself to a commercial policy which shows no signs of enlightenment since the darkest days of the Harding Administration. It would put an end to the very real danger that a sound and necessary principle will be repudiated in an election year under the pressure of special interests and reckless partisan politicians. It will put an end to a political struggle in which, to win his victory, Mr. Hull may have to pay an exorbitant price—in pre-occupation with partisan politics, in the deterioration of the work of the State Department. It will vindicate the principle and yet it meets squarely the reasonable objections of fair-minded opponents: that under these exceptional conditions, trade agreements have political implications and that Congress ought to be consulted about them.

Above all, it will place the whole matter in its true relationship to the practical realities. Can't be Free Trade During Time of War

It is evident I think, that foreign trade cannot be conducted in war time according to Mr. Hull's principles. There is a shortage of shipping; therefore, cargo space is rationed. There is a shortage of foreign exchange; therefore purchases abroad are rationed. Some of the belligerents are blockaded. The others, which control the seas, must reduce the imports that are not absolutely necessary and must expand the imports that are needed for the war. So there can be no free trade; on the contrary buying has to be conducted as a government monopoly. Moreover, the buying and the selling cannot be done commercially, that is by buying in the cheapest market and selling in the dearest. It has to be done politically: so as to injure the enemy and to support Allies and potential allies and wavering neutrals.

So if Mr. Hull assured Congress that he would not negotiate new agreements during the war, he would merely be recognizing the facts.

It is evident also that when there is an armistice and even when there is a peace treaty, these war controls cannot be removed at once. One of the great mistakes of the last year lay in thinking that the manpower and economic machinery of nations could be mobilized by the governments and then left to demobilize itself without firm government direction. That mistake cannot be repeated. It has taken countries like Germany, Great Britain and France at least five years to mobilize; it may take fully that long to demobilize.

During this period of demobilization Mr. Hull's principles will indicate the objective. But in themselves they cannot guide and control this enormously complicated transition from war to peace. That will require measures which no one today has fully grasped, which no one has seriously started to study. So why not ask Congress to select a standing committee to prepare for the difficult future, and what is more natural than to regard consultation about how to administer the trade agreements powers as part of the preparation?

It may be asked: why renew the powers if they are not to be used; why not wait until the time comes to use them? The answer, I think, is, first, that a failure to renew them will be regarded everywhere as a return to the most reactionary kind of commercial policy. Second, the powers should be kept alive, not to make new agreements, but as an instrument for readjusting details of the existing agreements. Third, a study to prepare for the future will be academic if the members of the committee merely collect memoranda and do not regard themselves as men exercising real, even if temporarily dormant, powers.

Moreover, as I see it, the post-war reconstruction cannot be formulated in a set of blueprints drawn up by men who do not have daily experience with the economic consequences of the war itself. They will not understand the world they are trying to reconstruct. So I believe that continual negotiation with foreign nations over details is the only way to develop the knowledge of what to do when the war ends.

I would go even further, and say that by continuing to negotiate there will emerge out of the specific studies of trade movements, foreign exchange, gold, and the like, shadow agreements for the demobilization and the post-war reconstruction. And if, as is conceivable, the war ends so inconclusively that demobilization is impossible, then we shall have learned from these continual negotiations more than we shall otherwise know about what to expect.

Ground Hog and Bureau Disagree On Weather Sign

Rodent Sees Shadow, but Forecaster Sees Mild-er Temperatures

The ground hog and the Milwaukee weather bureau disagreed as to what the future would be for the weather.

Mr. G. H. Hog climbed out of his hole, saw his shadow, and returned to his burrow—signifying to those who read of his forecasting abilities that there would be six weeks more of winter weather.

Metropolitan Frank H. Coleman of Milwaukee, however, predicted that Feb. 2 was the "turning point" and that daily normal temperatures would be a steady upward trend, the Associated Press reported.

He said that up to today, the daily normal temperature had been dropping.

Mr. G. H. Hog could see his shadow in almost any place in the middle west today, providing he picked the right time, as sunshine and blue skies prevailed.

The mercury fell with the coming of darkness last night and ascended with the arrival of light today. It was 33 above at 2:30 yesterday afternoon, nine above at 7 o'clock this morning and 25 above at 1 o'clock this afternoon in the city.

Miami, Fla., was back in its normal position today on the nation's weather chart and was able to turn in the highest reading of 72. Williston, N. D., had two below, the national minimum.

Temperatures will rise Saturday in Wisconsin, it was predicted.

'Kickoff Dinner' for Scout Drive Will be Held Tuesday Night

About 90 leaders and workers in the Appleton district boy scout campaign will attend the "kickoff dinner" Tuesday night in the Conway hotel.

The personnel of the 10 teams that will make up the campaign organization was being completed today. F. N. Belanger is general chairman for the drive.

The official days of the campaign are Wednesday and Thursday of next week, with Friday and Saturday designated as "clean up days." The goal is $4,500.

DEATHS

TOLLES TOLLEFSON
Tolles Tollefson, 71, Chilton, was found dead at 3 o'clock this morning in the Milwaukee road depot at Chilton, where he was employed as night watchman. Police Chief Anton Steffes found Tollefson's body. Heart disease was given as the cause of death.

Born in the town of Eaton, Manitowish county, Sept. 9, 1868, Mr. Tollefson farmed in North Dakota for 20 years, returning to Chilton 15 years ago. He never married.

Survivors are three brothers, Gustave, residing in Valders, Manitowish county; Oscar and Torval, Chilton.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon at the Otto Berge Funeral home in Valders and at 2:30 in the Valders Lutheran church. Burial will be in the parish cemetery.

JULIUS POPKE
Julius Popke, 65, 521 E. Washington street, New London, died at a New London hospital at 9 o'clock last evening. Mr. Popke suffered a paralytic stroke and collapsed on N. Pearl street at New London last Friday.

He was born in Germany June 9, 1854, and came to New London when 27 years old. He later lived in several other Wisconsin cities, returning to New London in 1936.

The only survivor is a son, Roy, Chicago.

MINE BLAST RIPS BRITISH SHIP APART

Viewed from an approaching boat, here's part of the superstructure of the 10,002-ton British liner Dunbar Castle protruding from the water off the southeast coast of England after the ship was torn in two by a mine explosion January 9. All 48 of her passengers and all but three of her crew of 150 got away in lifeboats.

Winter Continues Its Screwy Performance During January

The winter of 1939-40 should be remembered in Appleton for its screwy behavior.

In the first place, December, the month when winter usually begins to growl and rage, was hardly more than an extension of fall. Snow fell only two days in December and there were traces on three other days.

The temperature averaged 30.9 degrees, compared with 22.7 in the same month of 1938, and one day the mercury climbed to an incredible 55.

Things went along pretty quietly in January until the weekend of the 13th and 14th. Then a tremendous snowfall covered the city and in its wake came a bitter wave that shoved the thermometer down to 19 below zero.

Now comes a report on January's temperature that reveals last month's average of 12.3 degrees above was more than 10 degrees colder than in January of 1939, which turned in a medium of 22.8.

Snowfall last month measured 13.6 inches, contrasted with 12.3 in January of 1939. The mercury last month was under the zero mark 10 different days and recorded a minimum below that level over a 6-day stretch.

Weather's crazy doings aren't confined to Appleton by any means, for many parts of the south challenge up all-time lows in recent weeks and saw unprecedented snowstorms.

File Stipulation In Union Dispute

CIO and AFL Units Reach Agreement Regarding G. M. Plants

Detroit—(AP)—Stipulations designed to clear the way for employee bargaining elections in 62 General Motors Corp. plants were filed with the National Labor Relations Board here yesterday by the CIO United Automobile Workers and three AFL unions.

Trial examiner Horace A. Ruckel is hearing the petitions of six unions for certifications as bargaining agents.

The UAW-CIO was joined in the stipulations by the United Automobile Workers (AFL), the Patternmakers League of North America and the International Association of Machinists.

The union agreed that all G. M. Plants in which one union receives an election majority shall be grouped as a single bargaining unit, except that if pattern makers or die sinkers vote AFL in plants where production workers vote CIO, the craft union will bargain separately with the corporation for its craft workers in those plants.

If elections are ordered they will involve 125,000 workers, a record number for NLRB balloting.

Crandon Man Is Awarded $9,000

Appleton Man Ruled 100 Per Cent Negligent In Accident

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau
Oshkosh—Emil W. Zinsler, Crandon, was awarded damages totaling $9,000 by a circuit court jury yesterday in his $11,000 damage action against Robert Zilske, Appleton, the General Casualty company and the Standard Accident Insurance company.

The case was heard before Judge Henry P. Hughes at Oshkosh and grew from a traffic accident on Superhighway 41, near Stroebe's Island June 21, involving cars driven by Zinsler and Zilske. Zinsler suffered a broken jaw and fractured arm.

The jury found Zilske 100 per cent negligent and awarded Zinsler $1,000 for medical care and hospital costs, $7,500 for personal injuries, and $500 for his car.

It Is Said--

The lounge of the Conway hotel looked like a machine shop today because of the convention of Wisconsin Constructors, Inc. Firms showed a wide variety of machinery used in the building industry and the displays rivaled the fanciest work of a window dresser in their attractiveness. There were not, however, any steam shovels around.

Sen. Davis Still Against Waterway

Pennsylvanian Says Proposal Will Make His State a Desert

Washington—(AP)—Revival of the St. Lawrence seaway proposal found one of its most outspoken foes, Senator Davis (R-Pa.) as implacable today as ever.

"I have always said," Davis said in an interview, "if you want to make a desert of Pennsylvania, vote for the St. Lawrence waterway."

Aroused by mention of the project, Davis said, "I haven't changed my mind a bit. I don't know of anything that would change my mind. There's nothing fair about taxing Pennsylvania for something that will help to destroy it."

United States and Canadian engineers have been reported reaching a basis of understanding recently on the deeper waterway for ocean vessels between the Great Lakes and Atlantic ocean.

Davis said he would go before the senate again if the development were revived.

Republicans to Plan For State Convention

Outagamie county Republicans will gather at 8 o'clock tonight at the courthouse to discuss plans for the fall campaign and for the mid-winter state convention at Eau Claire. Selection of instructed or uninstructed candidates will be discussed, and Senator Alexander Wiley will talk on Republican organization.

New York—(AP)—Joseph V. Connolly, president of the International News Service, today issued the following statement on the case of James R. Young, correspondent of the organization in Japan, who is held in Tokio on charges of violating part of the Japanese army criminal code:

"Every effort is being made to determine full details of the charges made against Mr. Young by authorities in Tokio.

"Until such details are received, the best refutation of the allegations continues to lie merely in cutting Mr. Young's well-established reputation for accuracy and impartiality in his news coverage throughout a decade of service in the Far East.

"All steps are being taken to ensure that Mr. Young is adequately defended when his case is brought to trial. He staked his reputation for accuracy and truth upon his dispatches and a fair judgment of the case cannot fail to result in complete exoneration."

Strong Sentiment For 3rd Term Is Reported in West

Democratic Committee-men Arriving for Monday's Meeting

BY D. HAROLD OLIVER
Washington—(AP)—Early arrivals from the west for Monday's meeting of the Democratic national committee reported today that strong sentiment existed in their states for renomination of President Roosevelt.

Lynn Brodick, Kansas national committeeman, said: "Kansas is strong for Roosevelt and I feel the same way."

Ed A. Carroll, national committeeman for Washington State, expressed belief his state would "favor a third term if it were voting today," while Charles J. Vogel, new member from North Dakota, asserted:

"My state is very pro-Roosevelt, but I have no statement, further than that on a third term."

To Pick Time, Place
The committee is slated to pick a time and place for the party's presidential convention.

As the western committeemen talked of current trends, reports persisted that the convention date, many favor early August—should be selected by a subcommittee after the Republicans choose theirs Feb. 16.

Democratic Chairman James A. Farley has predicted both date and city would be decided Monday. The committee will meet only one day and then pay a courtesy call on President Roosevelt Tuesday morning.

Talk of a convention site still centered on Chicago, Philadelphia and San Francisco. The two latter cities have indicated that they would submit bids, but there was an unconfirmed report that Chicago would make no financial offer, although welcoming the convention.

Other political developments as the vanguard of the Democratic leaders trooped into Washington:

1. Official word was conveyed to the president and Farley that the Alaskan delegation to the national convention—first to be selected—had been instructed to cast its six votes for Mr. Roosevelt, and for Farley as second choice.

2. In New Jersey, a slate of candidates for delegates pledged to a third term was filed by the state Democratic organization of Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City.

'Goodbye Democrats'
3. Senator Smith (D-S. C.), who won renomination in 1938 over the president's opposition, told reporters that "Roosevelt may be renominated, but if he is goodbye Democratic party as it has been known all these years."

4. Paul V. McNutt, Democratic presidential candidate, told reporters in New York that he saw no possibility of a third party. He said six Delaware delegates had been pledged to him if Mr. Roosevelt were not run.

5. The executive council of the American Federation of Labor, meeting in Miami, declared that "any candidate for public office who seeks and accepts support of the president remarked he thought there was something in the works with reference to reports that former Governor George Earle of Pennsylvania would be named minister to Bulgaria.

Reminded that Europe's war was five months old, Mr. Roosevelt was asked whether he still felt, as he did at the outset, that the United States could stay out.

He said he had nothing to add to that remark, one way or another, and that any statement he had made held good until there was another.

A request for comment on operations of the neutrality act since its modification also was brushed aside with a suggestion that that was a matter for the state department to handle.

Emphasizing that he was being kept informed of all the latest developments in war-torn Europe, Mr. Roosevelt said he would leave for Washington late Monday unless some problem came up before then.

His plans for the weekend, he said, contemplated getting a lot of sleep and going through a lot of books.

the CIO and places himself in bondage to its leaders (John L. Lewis) has received the 'kiss of death' and is doomed to certain defeat."

6. David Dubinsky, president of the Ladies Garment Workers, said at New York Lewis' prophecy that Mr. Roosevelt would go down to "ignominious defeat" if renominated "in no way represents labor's attitude toward the president."

newsmen asked whether the press still would be coming up to Hyde Park with him next February.

That was just another attempt, as futile as numerous ones that had preceded it, to draw the president out on a third term. His present term expires next Jan. 20.

Mr. Roosevelt said, too, that he could not be drawn out on what he said was a discussion of liberal principles at a conference a week ago with Norman M. Littell, assistant attorney general; Marshal E. Dimock, assistant secretary of labor, and Oscar Chapman, assistant secretary of interior.

Nor did he comment on a luncheon date he had Wednesday with James A. Farley, except to say they had talked for about a quarter of a minute about Monday's meeting in Washington of the Democratic national committee, of which Farley is chairman.

Envoy to Report
In the field of international affairs, the chief executive said there was no particular significance in the fact that William E. Bullitt, ambassador to France, was returning to the United States. The ambassador was just coming back to make a report, the president declared.

In response to an inquiry, the president remarked he thought there was something in the works with reference to reports that former Governor George Earle of Pennsylvania would be named minister to Bulgaria.

Reminded that Europe's war was five months old, Mr. Roosevelt was asked whether he still felt, as he did at the outset, that the United States could stay out.

Select LeVee to Design Plans for New Courthouse

Building Committee Names Appleton Architect for Preliminary Work

Raymond N. LeVee, Appleton architect, yesterday was selected by the courthouse building committee to draw preliminary plans for a new courthouse building. LeVee was meeting today regarding the plans.

The plans, which will include a jail on the top floor, will be presented to the county board which still is to decide whether to submit the building proposal to a referendum. The board is scheduled to meet, Feb. 20, but it is likely the meeting will be adjourned until sometime in March in case the preliminary plans are not completed in time for consideration at the meeting this month.

The county supervisors last fall decided to build a courthouse without a jail. Later a petition asked a special meeting to reconsider the plan and it was proposed to submit it to a referendum. The matter of including a jail in the plans was brought up and action was deferred until preliminary plans complete with a jail could be drawn and studied.

Weyauwega Man Faces Bogus Check Charges

Otto A. Richter, 42, Weyauwega, was charged with cashing two forged checks and a worthless check when he was arraigned in municipal court of Judge Thomas H. Ryan this morning. Preliminary hearing was set for Feb. 12, and he is being held at the county jail in lieu of a $2,500 bond.

Richter was brought to Appleton by Police Chief George T. Prim from the Illinois state penitentiary where he was sent in 1933 to serve a term for forgery. He is charged with passing a worthless check for $50 at an Appleton store in 1930, a forged check for $32.50 at another Appleton store and a forged check for $33 at Greenville in 1933.

OUR TWENTIETH ANNIVERSARY

Today is the twentieth anniversary of the Appleton Post-Crescent, for it was 20 years ago, on February 2, 1920, that consolidation of the Appleton Daily Post and the Evening Crescent was effected.

In the first issue of the consolidated paper the purposes and aims of the Post-Crescent were announced, in part, as follows:

A newspaper which is a power for good, which is a potent influence in the upbuilding of the community, which defends the public interests and promotes the welfare of the people, is an institution that yields its greatest dividends in the consciousness of duty well performed. The day once was when the newspaper was an instrument for the advancement of personal ambitions, when it served special rather than public interests, when it was the tool, or shall we dignify it with the name "organ," of politicians. That day is over. The great power in the publishing world today is the independent, untrammelled, free press. It has little to do with politics, nothing to do with partisanship, and nothing to give to those who seek its assistance to gain office or use elections to help private interests.

The independent newspaper serves no master. It is not controlled by politicians, party pressure or any other self-seeking interest. It bears no party label. Its policies are governed by what it conceives to be for the good of the people, of the community, of the state and nation, without the slightest regard for political organizations or office seekers. It is always free to take any position it desires. It is free to reverse itself if it decides that a stand previously taken was a mistake. Its sole aim and its sole standard is to promote sound public policies and to help make its environment a better place in which to live and do business.

The Post-Crescent proposes to serve Appleton and its surrounding territory in this manner, with these purposes, to the best of its ability. It realizes that it must do this in order to obtain and hold the confidence of the people. It desires to place itself in a position to maintain these standards. . . . What affects Appleton and its people will be of first concern to the Post-Crescent. It is a newspaper for their use and we hope to build it into their confidence and support through merit and service.

In these 20 years the Post-Crescent has striven diligently and conscientiously to accomplish these purposes. How well it has been done may be illustrated by comparing the Post-Crescent of today with either of its predecessors, or the first issues of the consolidated paper. That these efforts have been appreciated is evidenced by the fact that the circulation of the Post-Crescent today is two and one-half times the combined circulation of the Daily Post and The Evening Crescent, and the people are reading it in increasing numbers every year.

The history of these two decades is an interesting story of how a relatively small town publication has earned the right to be compared in size and quality with newspapers published in cities many times larger than Appleton. It is no idle boast to say that the Post-Crescent is known and respected as a fine newspaper all over the United States. Its circulation of 18,000 compares favorably with the distribution of many newspapers published in cities much larger than Appleton.

Times and conditions have changed, so it might not be entirely fair to compare personnel, plant and machinery of the Post-Crescent of today with the newspaper of 20 years ago; nevertheless it is a long step from the operations of those days to the highly efficient, bustling organization of 1940. Where there were only three reporters and editors to gather the news of the community there now are 16; a thoroughly modern photographic department keeps the paper filled with interesting pictures; the full report of the Associated Press, supplemented by special correspondents in Washington and Madison, keeps readers informed upon international, national and state matters, and a carefully selected battery of commentators provides the background upon which readers may intelligently appraise the news of the day. Then too the Post-Crescent offers a host of features catering to the special interests of its readers, such as articles on bridge, on care of children, on etiquette, on the daily problems of life, on dressmaking and needlework, and many others. All these things were developed in these 20 years to the point where the Post-Crescent in its news content compares favorably with the best papers published in cities of 50,000 and over.

It has been no easy task to produce this kind of a newspaper. It has required careful planning, hard work and the unswerving loyalty of the staff and the public. Even during the darkest days of the depression, when almost every industry was curtailing to the bare necessities, the Post-Crescent carried on, and with the first break in the financial clouds it pushed ahead to a new high in accomplishment.

The Post-Crescent is happy to print this kind of a newspaper because it believes the people of Appleton and surrounding territory deserve it and appreciate it. The record of growth and progress in these 20 years is the best promise of progress in the future. Only recently announcement was made of the purchase of additional land on which a modern engraving plant is to be erected, in order to improve and enlarge the picture coverage of the Post-Crescent. This again is tangible evidence of our faith in this community, and our desire to improve and progress with it, so that we may continue to hold the confidence of the people as we have in the last two decades.

IN WHICH WE AGREE WITH MR. LEWIS

The C.I.O. chieftain wants the nation to remedy the problem of unemployment first of all. He says that if the limp could be taken out of employment in this country a number of other seemingly knotty problems would become automatically solved.

Oddly enough Mr. Lewis does not ask either congress or the president for a solution. He is wise in holding Mr. Roosevelt back else the solution may be again seriously retarded by parlor theory worked out just before the time to cheer. But his recommendation of a get-together meeting of labor, farmer and industrial leaders was advocated by the Post-Crescent five years ago when it became clear to this paper that the so-called economic panaceas advanced by the administration would float the ship of state off the reef about as effectively as adding a load of cement to its cargo.

Certainly no representative group of leaders from any section of American life would have supported the purely woolly ideas that have been enacted into law. It was a perfectly fair bet that if the pilotage of the ship of state had been left entirely to the American Federation of Labor—judged alone by its practical record—we would have been saved from some funny slogans and funnier enactments.

Workers and farmers are often selfish—as who is not?—but they know enough about life to realize that he who thinks a nation can spend itself rich is something of a curiosity until he obtains power when he may become a distinct menace. And they realize that if you strip industry of its bank balance to support a Praetorian army you are bound to deaden its ambition for new industrial adventure just as surely as you render it unable to hire more men that it simply must have.

Curious as it is to relate our rulers have not understood these facts of life.

SHARING THE WEALTH

No such charges as are often directed at the wealthy, sometimes with justification, of being idle or selfish, or both, could be pointed at Edward S. Harkness. By the time his life came to an end this week he had given away more than $100,000,000 to a great variety of philanthropies.

Mr. Harkness again confirmed the fact that money is not necessarily the root of evil; that its value is determined by the use to which it is put. Presented with one of America's largest fortunes by his father, a Rockefeller partner, Mr. Harkness devoted his life to giving it away. He made a career of philanthropy and worked hard at it, as assiduously as his father had in accumulating the fortune.

The great good that this man did may be measured not alone by the huge sums he distributed but also by the causes to which he gave. Among his larger donations, gifts running into millions went for the establishment of rural hospitals, medical centers, educational institutions, libraries, for legal aid to the poor, to soldiers and sailors, for reforestation, for the Boy Scouts and for countless other worthy groups, institutions and undertakings. In one 10-year period, his gifts exceeded $55,000,000.

With his fortune serving as entry to directorships in many concerns, Mr. Harkness could have been an industrialist, financier, or business magnate devoting his time to the making of more money. But he understood that money has more than numerical value. He was both realist and idealist, and because of that thousands of people, the majority of whom did not even know his name, have benefited by his practical compassion.

The life of Edward S. Harkness ought to be an example to others, less thoughtful, of great wealth. It also should be a reminder that many rich men are earnestly trying to share their wealth in a way that will do the greatest good to the greatest number.

Incidentally, it is safe to say that Harkness enjoyed life more by giving money away than he could have by trying to accumulate more of it.

A Verse for Today

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

BY DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN
Washington—Behind John L. Lewis' splutter of Roosevelt fury was one factor which he carefully avoided mentioning. This was the president's persistent private prodding to get Lewis to resume peace negotiations with the AFL.

Lewis bitterly resented this pressure, and it is no secret among his intimates that he developed considerable personal heat against Roosevelt for "needling" him. At their last conference, several days before Lewis' entreaties for the miners' convention, he staged an angry scene.

The president has had three private talks with John L. in the last six weeks, and each time he has quietly brought up the question of labor peace, despite Lewis' obvious resentment. Several days before the last meeting, Roosevelt conferred with AFL President William Green and told him he thought the time had come to make another serious peace effort. Green said the AFL was ready to resume parleying, but doubted that Lewis wanted peace.

Later Roosevelt told Lewis that he had Green's assurance of the AFL's readiness to renew negotiations, and asked him to co-operate. But John L. hit the ceiling.

He declared that he was signing no "blank checks," that the AFL knew his terms and had refused to accept them, that he saw nothing to be gained by resuming futile parleys that would lead only to more recriminations. Lewis also made it clear that he was fed up with being summoned to the White House and prodded about labor peace.

Roosevelt kept his temper but persisted in his demand that the two rival camps make a new harmony effort.

"The country wants peace," he said quietly, "the rank-and-file of both organizations want peace and the labor movement needs peace. It's something that must be done, John."

That terminated the talk. Grimly, Lewis departed.

Note—Strongest influences behind Roosevelt's persistence are two top-flight labor leaders: Dan Tobin, head of the powerful AFL teamsters' union; and Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and co-founder of the CIO. Both are in constant touch with the president and unwavering in urging that he keep after Lewis and Green.

At their last conference several weeks ago, Tobin told Roosevelt he was going to demand that the AFL executive council, now meeting in Miami, take definite steps toward a new peace parley.

NAVAL SECRETARIES

When the secretary of the navy is twisting the lock of hair over his right temple, he is in a meditative mood and not to be disturbed.

Lewis Compton learned this about Charles Edison when each was one grade lower than he is today. When Edison was assistant secretary, Compton, then his aide, used to open the door cautiously to see if Edison was busy. If the fingers of the right hand were twisting that lock of hair, Compton quietly shut the door.

Today Compton is assistant secretary. He occupies the desk and office formerly used by Edison, who has moved into the secretary's suite. And now the door-peeping act is reversed.

Edison, who has a whimsical sense of humor, comes to Compton's door, as Compton himself used to do, knocks gently, and peeps in to see if his assistant secretary is too busy to see him!

INDICTED DEMOCRATS

When you balance up all the income tax and criminal prosecutions brought by the New Deal, it will be seen that about as many Democrats have been hit as Republicans.

Some of the biggest Republicans in the country have been prosecuted, such as Andrew Mellon and Charles E. Mitchell on income taxes, and Richard Whitney for stock market manipulation.

On the Democratic side the New Deal has prosecuted Boss Pendergast of Kansas City, a Louisiana machine, and is now investigating the McNutt machine in Indiana.

Latest move against a Democratic bigwig is the indictment of E. Kehaya, chairman of the Democratic foreign language committee. Kehaya was extremely active for Roosevelt during the 1936 campaign and raised considerable money.

The indictment in New York against Kehaya, together with other officials of the Standard Commercial Tobacco company, is on a charge of stock manipulation brought by the securities and exchange commission.

According to U. S. District Attorney John Cahill in New York, who handled the indictments, Kehaya and his associates juggled their tobacco stocks in such a manner as to cause a loss of four million dollars to the investing public.

AIRPLANE BOTTLENECK

A serious bottleneck is the inside reason for Secretary Morgenthau's mysterious interest in the aviation industry.

Under the stimulation of the U. S. national defense program, plus war orders from Europe, plane manufacturers have built up their production to 17,000 fuselages a year. But airplane motor output has lagged considerably behind. At present only about 12,000 motors are being turned out each year.

This is enough for domestic requirements, but far below the joint demand from the U. S. and the Allies. So the president designated Morgenthau as head of an inter-departmental committee to see what could be done about it.

Air-cooled motors, with which U. S. planes are equipped, are produced chiefly by two concerns, Pratt-Whitney and Wright. Remembering the disasters that befell many industries after over-expansion in the last war, plane makers are chary about increasing their plants beyond domestic business prospects. Some, however, have offered to build additional facilities of the Allies provide the funds.

MERRY GO ROUND

The president wants to take a fishing vacation around the middle of this month, but doesn't know where to go. The secret service has barred the Caribbean because of conditions arising out of the European war. The West Coast is considered too far away for a brief trip. Maybe he has some helpful suggestions. . . . Inside reason for the sudden cordiality of William Martin, young president of the New York Stock exchange, to the SEC's demand that steps be taken to protect customers' funds deposited with brokers, may have been a terse private warning by General Robert Wood, head of Sears, Roebuck and member of the Exchange board of governors, that unless something was done he would quit—and tell the reason why. . . . Efforts by Iowa friends to drum up a "favorite son" boom for Hanford McNider, U. S. Minister to Canada under Hoover, are getting nowhere fast. State GOP leaders not only are cool to McNider, but also to the whole idea of a "favorite son." They want to go to the convention with free hands.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington — Congress knows more tricks than a magician when for political purposes a little cut in an appropriation must be made to look like a big one.

That explains most of the slashing the members are talking about. In actual dollars and cents Congress hasn't saved the taxpayers much money — yet. Later Congress may. Wise Washingtonians doubt there will be any revolutionary budget cuts in 1940.

Most of the savings are not savings at all. They are postponements. Congress is simply putting off spending until after election day. If the congressmen can't put it off that long, at least they will stall it off several months. By then so much politics will be in the air that a couple of battleships could be lost in the mist.

Money For Merchant Ships

Here is a sample. Last year Congress kept the appropriation of the maritime commission moderately low but gave it an authorization to contract for $200,000,000 in merchant ships. That meant that the ship building would go on, but the cost wouldn't show up in the appropriation bills for a time. This year it began to show up—at a mighty bad time. Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the commission, asked Congress to put up $200,000,000 to pay something on these shipbuilding contracts he had been authorized to make. Last year it was a swell idea to build ships. This year it isn't so popular. The Neutrality act has bottled up the ones we have, so why build more?

Congress couldn't repudiate contracts it had authorized, but it did trim the admiral's requests to $125,000,000. That looked like a net saving of $75,000,000. It wasn't anything of the kind. It was just a postponement. Congress will have to pay it later—but not much later. The admiral came rushing up to Congress to protest that $39,000,000 of the $75,000,000 was needed already to pay on contracts let, and, by jimmies, he wasn't going to be left holding the bag.

That $75,000,000 is the biggest "saving" yet marked up.

The House appropriations committee tried to smooth over the cut by authorizing the admiral to contract for $150,000,000 more cargo vessels, but the House would have nothing of it. Any fancy authorizations like that will have to come through as a separate bill.

Here is another sample. The army, navy and coast guard came up for an emergency supplemental appropriation to speed up the defense program and finance the neutrality patrol. They asked $271,999,520. In a fury of economy the House trimmed $401,615 off that bill. But it wasn't a net saving by any means. They authorized the navy to go ahead with $2,450,000 of building. The money for it will be appropriated perhaps next year, after election.

In an even greater wave of economy, the Senate cut $12,788,664 off this emergency bill. Part of it was good, clean savings but part of it—about half—was just good, clean fun. The Senate simply told the navy to wait about six months before it bought 81 scout bombers at a cost of $6,875,000.

The Navy Program

The House staged a good economy act by reaching right into the White House to knock off three presidential pets, the Office of Public Reports ($1,055,000), the National Resources Planning Board ($1,069,000) and the Council of Personnel Administration ($25,040).

But the House members were only fooling. These agencies had been set up out of relief funds and there was no law under which a direct appropriation could be made. It was a good act while it lasted, but the agencies probably will get their money later.

The really big show is the Naval Expansion bill devised by Rep. Vinson of Georgia, chairman of the House naval affairs committee. It came out first as a $1,300,000,000 naval expansion bill with a whopping addition of nearly a hundred ships in a five-year program. It didn't get a good public reception. Now it has shrunk to $372,000,000. But the navy's desire for a hundred ships hasn't been cut. Instead the thing has been trimmed in time—not in space. Now it is a two-year program, calling for 21 ships. The thing can be started for a piddling $28,000,000 appropriation. The real kick will have to come later, after 1940.

CIRCUMSTANCES ALTER CASES

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—Again there is talk of a sales tax as the easiest and most practical means of reducing what everyone concedes is a pressing property tax problem in many Wisconsin localities and to make ready for what will undoubtedly continue to be high relief and social security claims on the public treasury.

The subject is brought up again at this time largely because of a surprising document released this week by the League of Wisconsin Municipalities, which wants a reduction in property taxes and prefers almost any other tax form to accomplish that end. In a study prepared by Prof. Walter Morton of the University of Wisconsin economic department, the League sets out to prove that the sales tax, which for years has had a bad name in Wisconsin, is actually fairer and less regressive than the property tax which now as always is the main support of public institutions in the state.

MORTON'S SURPRISE PACKAGE

Morton's conclusions were like a thunderbolt in the capital city, where he has always been regarded as one of the left-wingers on the university faculty, and where economics professors have never left much doubt about their scorn for the sales tax as the poorest of all possible forms of taxation.

But of greater importance is the release of the document at a time when men in public life in Wisconsin are slowly coming to the conclusion that a sales tax is inescapable, that neither the income or property tax base is capable of carrying more of the load of new and greater public expenditures which no political party, apparently, has the will to halt.

Let the impression arise, however, that an early sales tax enactment is inevitable, this column has tens to point to the experience of those men who tried to sponsor one a few months ago.

The Heil administration in the last legislative session had a tailor-made opportunity to put over a sales tax. It was tried. It failed, so quickly, so devastatingly, that few remember that it was one of the big issues of a session filled with big issues.

Although theorists may argue that a sales tax is a necessary alternative to the property tax, although politicians may be unable to explain by what other means they can pay relief and social security costs, there was so little support for the idea in the 1939 session—despite urgent pleas for property tax relief and high pensions—that sponsors were unable to get it to the floor for debate. And that session had as many hardy and courageous members as any other. Politically, the sales tax is anathema in Wisconsin. A good bet is that it will take a few more years to break down that stigma, however great the justification for a change in the tax system may appear to be.

MANY COLORS

As good an example of political free-lancing as has come to public attention in Wisconsin in a good many years is that offered by Charles Goldamer of Abbotsford, erstwhile farm leader. Several years ago Goldamer was a member of the Progressive state central committee, elite group of the LaFollette party. Down in the vaults of the secre-

SUPPORT FOR PTOSIS

Ptosis (pronounced toe-sis) is sagging, drooping, drooping, looseness from normal anchorage or support, prolapse or displacement of one or more organs.

The other day we quoted Dr. Osler's remark that in a majority of all cases of Glanard's disease (visceroptosis, looseness of attachments and drooping or displacement of stomach, intestine, colon, liver, spleen, kidney) there are four indications namely to treat the existing neurasthenia, to relieve the nervous dyspepsia, to overcome the constipation, and to afford mechanical support to the organs.

Nearly always ptotic patients experience marked relief or improvement when any kind of efficient support is applied to the belt, especially while the patient lies down with the hips higher than the shoulders. Yet it is a grave question whether one with visceroptosis should wear such artificial support constantly or any considerable part of the time.

The question is similar to the question of a girl or young woman adopting corsets or other mechanical supporters. She may choose one of two alternatives. Either keep her own natural supports, her muscles, in condition by suitable exercise and depend on them to give her good carriage and graceful appearance; or put the muscles out tary of state office, under a file heading "Heil for Governor Club, 1938" is recorded a disbursement of $100 to the Clark county gentleman for political services rendered to the man who now occupies the executive office.

Then last Sunday, at the nominating conference of the left-wing Democratic forces of Wisconsin, Goldamer arose to try to nominate William B. Rubin, a rebel against the rebels, for delegate to the national Democratic convention, and was ousted from the hall for his pains. At that meeting Goldamer defined himself as a Democrat, and had some exceedingly bitter remarks to make of Mr. Heil. Politics is a strange game.

of commission under mechanical braces, splints or binders so that the muscles gradually atrophy and become flabby and weak, as do muscles of a limb kept for a time in cast or splint.

If the man or woman with ptosis is convinced that he or she is doomed to a lifetime of dependence on crutches, then there is little more to be said. On the other hand if the man or woman with ptosis is not so readily resigned to semi-invalidism and has a resourceful physician, there is always an excellent prospect of achieving a complete cure thru (a) proper nutrition, to restore tone to the muscles, voluntary and the alimentary muscles too, (b) systematic postural and correctional exercise.

Most ptotic individuals are long waited. Corsets or similar supporters make them look even longer waited. They are generally somewhat underweight. In such cases it may be difficult to judge whether improved nutrition, better tone in skeletal and visceral muscle and better digestion account for the gain in weight that occurs with improvement, or whether the accumulation or restoration of the natural fat pads, which help support the viscera, enables the organs to function better. Nor is it of more than theoretical interest how that may be. The important point is that ptosis is essentially a minor ailment and is practically always curable if wisely managed. The cure is to be brought about by a judicious combination of postural rest and exercise with careful attention of the physician to the patient's nutrition.

Survey Indicates Labor Union Sentiment Is Less Democratic Than It Was in 1936

BY DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J.—John L. Lewis's open breach with the Roosevelt administration and his refusal to endorse the President for a third term raises the vital political question, where do labor union members stand on President Roosevelt today?

Throughout the course of its national surveys of public opinion, the American Institute regularly samples the opinions of labor union members in all states. Its staff of more than 700 interviewers sounds labor sentiment in all the principal labor centers such as Youngstown, Cleveland, Detroit, Toledo, Pittsburgh, Indianapolis, Akron, Gary, New York, San Francisco, Boston, and other cities.

The results of these surveys show that among the labor union members included in the sample, sentiment is pro-Roosevelt and pro-Democratic, despite attacks on the New Deal by Lewis and other leaders. Nearly three-fifths of those polled favor a Roosevelt third term, and an even greater majority say they want to see the Democratic party win the presidential election.

However, the trend of sentiment among labor union members is less Democratic today than it was at the time of the 1936 election. The majorities which today favor a Roosevelt third term or a Democratic victory are not as large as the majority given President Roosevelt when he ran in 1936. The survey finds that 80 per cent of these labor union members reached in the study voted for Roosevelt in that year.

Labor union sentiment today is reflected in surveys on the following specific issues:

"If President Roosevelt runs for a third term, will you vote for him?"

Would Vote For Roosevelt 59%

Would Vote Against 41%

John L. Lewis, leader of the C.I.O., has openly attacked the Roosevelt administration and scoffed at the president's chances for winning a third term. A national poll shows that, despite Lewis' break with Roosevelt, the rank and file of labor union members are pro-Democratic but much less so than in 1936.

Only a small proportion—10 per cent—expressed no opinion.

"Which party would you like to see win the presidential election this year?"

Would Like Democrats

to Win 66%

Would Like Republicans

to Win 34%

The above is the vote of those holding opinions on the subject. Approximately two in ten—18 per cent—expressed no opinion.

Will Lewis Swing Opinion?

These results indicate that while there is a fair-sized opposition to a Roosevelt third term among labor union members, nevertheless the majority are still pro-Democratic in their leanings though much less so than in 1936. Will Lewis, with his attacks on the president be able to swing a substantial part of the labor vote away from the New Dealers? The course of events in the coming months will provide the answer. The full effect of Lewis' recent statements is not reflected in today's study, though the results indicate that the C.I.O. leader may face an uphill fight at the start. New surveys will be conducted in the coming months to chart the trend of sentiment and the reaction to Lewis' activities.

U. S. Grants to State Ahead of Collections

Washington —(AP)—Wisconsin received $111,309,000 in federal grants and expenditures in the fiscal year ended last June 30, Representative Williams (R-Del.) informed the house, while the government's internal revenue collections in the estate amounted to $86,406,000 for the year.

Federal tax collections exceeded the total of federal grants and expenditures, he said, in 17 states—California, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Illinois, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Virginia.

High Tension Wire Is Enigma in Movie Blaze

Gordon, Neb.—(AP)—Volunteer firemen had to shut off this town's power supply while cutting high tension wires leading into a blazing moving picture theater.

That caused the town's water pumps to stop, which in turn resulted in a water shortage that enabled the flames to get out of control. Hershel Wheeler, theater manager, estimated the loss to equipment and the building at $50,000. Screen fans were downhearted because it was the town's only moving picture house.

First Clare Major Production Will be Presented Tuesday

This year as in former years, children of the Orthopedic school and the deaf and opportunity rooms as well as underprivileged children of Appleton will be guests at the Clare Trec Major Children's theater plays, the first of which will be presented at 2:30 next Tuesday afternoon at Lawrence Memorial chapel. The season opens with "Dick Whittington and His Cat," and others which will be shown in Appleton are "Pocahontas" on March 5 and "Old King Cole" on April 2.

Special guests at the play Tuesday will be Girl Scout troop committee members and leaders. The plays are especially written for children and the players are trained in the traditions of the theater with special emphasis on interpretation for child audiences. With the aid of beautiful scenery and lovely costumes they are able to produce a performance that makes a lasting impression on children.

The story of Dick Whittington and his cat is as popular in England as the story of Abraham Lincoln's rise from birth in a log cabin to the presidency is among boys and girls in the United States. How Dick founded his fortune, married his employer's daughter and finally became Lord Mayor of London is a matter of history, but in this case history is made fanciful by the story Whittington told about himself and of his first discovroom and Mrs. Clara Wassmann, Mrs. Herman Rehder and Mrs. Walter Yandre of kitchen.

Aimee Zillmer to Begin Her Series of Talks Monday Night

Informality will be the keynote of Aimee Zillmer's lectures on "Friendship and Marriage," which the Auxiliary to the Appleton Junior Chamber of Commerce will sponsor at the Y. M. C. A. each Monday evening in February.

At her first lecture at 7:30 Monday night, Feb. 5, Miss Zillmer, who is a lecturer for the state board of health, will discuss the aspects of boy-and-girl friendships before marriage, including in her talk such topics as "blind dates," business friends, finding a mate, petting and love and courtship.

After her lectures Miss Zillmer encourages group discussions and personal conferences. To make certain that she is giving her listeners exactly the information they desire and in an impersonal manner, a question box will be maintained at the door of the lecture hall.

The enthusiastic response to bulletins announcing this course posted at various manufacturing places, offices and dormitories indicates that this series of talks will be a popular one. Mrs. Jack E. Kirk, chairman of the Jaces auxiliary state project, announced today. There is no admission fee, and the course is open to any woman over 20 years of age.

REUNION FOR THE BARRYMORES
This picture of John and Elaine Barrymore was made in the New York night club where Barrymore and his relatives acted in a drama at least as exciting as his play "My Dear Children." Welfare Circle Hears Report On Year's Work

FROM Nov. 1 to Feb. 1 the Infant Welfare circle of Appleton King's Daughters distributed 3,598 quarts of milk to borderline families and during the last year the same organization brought thousands of magazines to St. Elizabeth hospital for the patients to read, members of the circle learned at their monthly meeting Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Gustave J. Keller, 410 W. Eighth street. The circle will continue to give milk to needy families for the next two months, a project made possible by the public's support of the charity ball given in December.

Each Friday morning members of the hospital committee of the circle go to St. Elizabeth hospital with magazines for distribution among the patients. They are always accompanied by a member of the Appleton Public library staff, who loans books at the same time. During the last year, Mrs. Joseph Marston reported, 1,427 books were loaned to patients. When the project was first inaugurated, about 25 books were loaned in one month. Today that figure has grown to more than 150 a month.

Asking public support of its magazine project, the circle has announced that it is anxious to collect magazines that are fairly current, not more than a month or two old, for distribution at the hospital. Mrs. Ralph McGowan is chairman of the hospital committee, and will arrange to call for the magazines if she is notified.

The circle's next meeting is scheduled for Feb. 27 at Mrs. Joseph Marston's home.

State to Probe Charges Against Menasha Dairy

Schedule Public Hearing On Application for License

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau. Madison—That the revised state milk control law will be rigidly enforced against violators was indicated today by the state department of agriculture as a hearing on a complaint alleging violations by a Menasha milk distributor was announced.

The department will hold a public hearing at the Neenah city hall Feb. 6 on an application by Frank Fritsch and Sons, Menasha, for a 1940 milk dealer's license at which time the department will consider a complaint charging the applicant with violating the milk market order for Appleton and Neenah-Menasha.

The department has served the dairy a complaint charging the following violations of the Appleton-Twin Cities market order:

1. Selling milk and cream below the minimum prices prescribed on the market for the range within which such milk and cream tested.

2. Selling milk and cream of a higher butterfat content than the maximum prescribed for the range within which such milk and cream was sold.

3. The failure to keep records so as to reflect properly the true financial condition of the regulated milk business which the firm operates.

The hearing will be the first of its kind under the new milk price control act in the Fox river valley area, although there has been considerable controversy in the Milwaukee milk shed.

Stricter application of the law, and close examination of all applicants for dealers' licenses, is described as the policy of the department under the new milk control director, Verlyn F. Sears.

Sears and Gilbert F. Lappley, counsel for the milk division, will conduct the Neenah hearing.

During 1939, Great Britain purchased 800,000 tons of scrap steel and iron from the United States.

Cancer Still Is Mystery Disease, Doctor Tells Club

Cure Limited So Far to Surgery, X-Ray or Radium, Rotarians Told

Neenah—Declaring that cancer still is a mystery disease, Dr. Gordon Peterson, Neenah, said in a talk at the noon meeting of the Neenah Rotary club Thursday at the Valley hotel that these facts are known about cancer: "It generally occurs in persons over 40 years of age, caused by chronic irritation and probably is hereditary."

More research is being done in the field of cancer than in any other one disease, according to the doctor, as he warned the Rotarians against "quack" cancer cures. He pointed out that cure is limited, so far, to surgery, X-ray and radium.

There is a considerable amount of research being done in "frozen sleep" as a possible cure for the dreaded disease. Dr. Peterson stated, but so far the treatment hasn't cured cancer. It has, however, improved persons afflicted with the disease, such as eliminating pain and stopping and even decreasing the growth.

Uncontrolled Growth. Contrary to fallacious belief, cancer isn't like an octopus, the doctor said as he explained the disease. The body, he said, is composed of cells, in fact, all life starts from a single cell and it multiplies until maturity is reached. The cells stop growing, only multiplying to replace worn out cells. One of these cells rebels against the body and keeps growing, and the body having no defense against it, that cell becomes a cancer and outmasters the normal cells, eventually causing death.

One feature known about these cells, the doctor said, is that they are mobile, traveling through the blood stream to other parts of the body.

While the irritation process is the accepted theory as the cause of cancer, it really is not a cause, only a fact of what takes place. It is known that over a long period of time, an irritation will cause cancer. He explained other theories but said there is little or no evidence for proving them.

More Persons Eligible. While statistics show that there is an increase of cancer, this isn't exactly the picture, for there now are a lot more people reaching older ages. Cancer is more common in persons 40 years of age and older, and years ago many children died from diseases from which they don't die today because of the advancement of medicine, so there are more persons reaching an adult age and are eligible to cancer.

"Cancer seems to be hereditary," the doctor said, but it will take 200 to 300 years to prove this, for past medical records aren't available, although it is accepted that certain families have cancer tendencies.

Pointing out that before anything can be done about a cancer there must be early treatment, Dr. Peterson stated that pain isn't an early symptom, for when pain is felt, cancer then is in an advanced stage. "Cancer phobia, however, is one of the worst types of diseases," he said.

Friday Night Dances To be Conducted at Recreation Building

Neenah—Dances for children of high school age will be held at the recreation center every Friday night, it was decided by the recreation commission at a meeting last night.

The $160,000 recreation center and swimming pool will have its "open house" starting Saturday noon and continuing through Monday. A dance will be held at 9 o'clock Tuesday evening.

The recreation center will be open throughout the year for adults and young people, and the program will be extended to meet public demand. The building may be rented for banquets, dances, meetings and other functions, and although the rate hasn't been set yet, it will be a small fee.

Facilities of the recreation center, including the fountain and lunch room, showers and ping pong tables will be open to the public. Paul Stacker is manager of the center, and the recreation commission is composed of Mayor Edwin A. Kalfas, chairman, Ivan Williams, secretary, Dr. M. Donovan, Dr. R. B. Rogers, Walter Hauke, Mrs. Al Cummings and Mrs. William Dowling.

AND I AM DURING THE DAY—SINCE WE CHANGED TO CLEAN, ECONOMICAL FORD COKE

Since Ford Coke ignites quickly, burns with a hot, even heat and leaves few ashes, father's trips to the cellar are few and far between. And because Ford Coke is clean and burns cleanly, Mother's day seems shorter. There's so much less dirt to track through the house.

Waste materials are removed in the coking process. So Ford Coke is economical. Uniform too! A ton in your own burner should be convincing. Telephone us right this minute.

Zephyr Cagers to Seek Eighth Loop Victory Tonight

St. Mary's to Close Home Conference Season Against Oshkosh Team

Menasha — St. Mary's High school cagers will seek their eighth straight Fox Valley Catholic conference victory at 8 o'clock tonight at St. Mary's gymnasium. St. Mary's High school of Oshkosh, resting in the cellar of the conference, will provide the opposition.

While the Zephyrs are riding at the top of the conference with seven straight victories, the Greyhounds from Oshkosh have had seven straight defeats tacked onto their record. The Zephyrs defeated the Greyhounds 32 to 7 in the first game of the season last November.

The game tonight will be the last home conference encounter for the St. Mary's team. They still must play St. John's of Little Chute and St. Norbert of De Pere, but both games are scheduled away from home.

Kaukauna Feb. 9 However, the Zephyrs still have two games at home which should be thrillers. The next game will be Kaukauna High school at the Zephyr gymnasium next Friday night, Feb. 9. The home season will close Feb. 16 with the feature game of the year, Neenah High school versus St. Mary's High school.

All seats for the Neenah game are being reserved. Sale of tickets for that game opens tonight and indications are that the supply of tickets will be quickly exhausted. Farnham Johnson, center for the Zephyrs, has scored 65 points in seven conference games. Close behind him is William Resch with 63 points. However, individual scoring lead in the conference is held by Collins, St. Norbert player, who has scored 69 points in only five games. The Zephyrs limited Collins to only five points but he made up the difference in other games. His best night was 11 field goals against the St. Joseph team for 22 of the 29 points his team scored.

Zephyr reserves will clash with a reserve team from St. Mary's of Oshkosh in a preliminary game tonight. The Menasha reserves won the first game between the two teams.

Haas Says Hope Of Democracy Is Broad Education

Claims Illiterate People Can't Function in Free State

Neenah — The United States is one area in the world in which democracy can remain, Grant C. Haase, Madison, said in the fourth of a series of six lectures on world problems last night at Kimberly school. The lecturers are being sponsored by the Neenah vocational school.

Haas stated that democracy can't function in an economics of scarcity and where there are several political parties, such as in western Europe.

Defining democracy as a perfect equality of opportunity, particularly educational opportunity, Haas said it is a government by consent of the governed with free speech, free assembly, free worship and freedom to elect representatives. The hope of democracy is universal compulsory education, for illiterate people can't function under a democracy. They are too easily bought.

Political Democracy

"We are interested in political democracy, for economic and social democracies are impossible in the United States under the present system," he stated. He said that there has to be constant experiments in a democracy and changes should be made as needed, for democracy can't be static.

Haas said he didn't think congress would do anything about the trade agreement between America and Japan during the present session because of the 1940 election. He said politicians don't discuss highly controversial subjects just before an election.

The speaker said that Japan's demand of a written apology from the British in connection with the removal by the British of 21 seamen off a Japanese ship shows that Japan has gained considerable domination, for in the past, it always was Japan which had to make the written apologies.

Horse Breeders Will Meet Next Wednesday

(Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau) Oshkosh—Two meetings of interest to Winnebago county farmers are scheduled at the courthouse here next week, according to R. C. Heffernan, county agricultural agent.

Directors of the Winnebago County Horse Breeders' association will meet in the county agent's office Monday evening, Feb. 5, and the Winnebago County Fruit and Garden Growers' association will hold its monthly meeting at the same place Wednesday evening, Feb. 7.

BROTHERS SET UP BOWLING ALLEY IN BARN

Woodrow and Fred Diehl, route 3, Appleton, spend most their evenings in the big barn at the Diehl farm, though their chores are finished early. The reason is recreation in the form of bowling on an alley made in the barn by Woodrow who was assisted by his brother Fred.

The concrete floor between the cow stalls forms a regular alley and standard pins are used. Shown in their bowling alley are Woodrow, left, and Fred. Woodrow says they have neighbors in for matches and never are without spectators, a herd of cows, part of which is shown in the picture. The cows "make good spectators," they don't boo the players," Woodrow says.

Fred made the bowling ball, which weighs five pounds, from a chunk of red elm timber. He cut it out with an old fashioned spoke shave in five hours of spare time. He says it is the first bowling ball that really fits his hand and he plans to have a regulation ball made with the home made one as a pattern. The highest score made on the alley thus far is 118. Sideboards in the pin pit prevent flying pins from striking the cows. The pins are set up by hand. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Flock Owners Can Check Diseases by Acting in Groups

Good Neighbor Policy Also Protects Poultry at Home

The good neighbor policy can be a dividend producer when applied to poultry raising, according to J. B. Hayes, state university extension poultryman, in a bulletin to J. F. Magnus, county agricultural agent. Hayes states that measures taken to prevent possible spread of disease from one poultry flock to neighboring flocks are in themselves measures which help prevent reinfection of the home flock.

Hayes points out that adult mortality, or adult death rate, in farm poultry flocks is much over what it should be. He emphasizes that this adds to production costs, and, of course, cuts down on the amount of income the flock returns to its owner. Much of the difficulty with adult mortality can be traced in large part to the spread of poultry diseases.

One of the easiest paths by which poultry infections spread, he says, is through the practice during the winter of carrying birds which die out into a field and leaving them on the surface of the snow. Carrion crows and dogs have access to them and may carry the infection from farm to farm. Run-off water when snow melts may also carry disease into neighboring poultry yards.

As an alternative way of disposing of the dead birds and at the same time preventing the spread of disease, Hayes suggests burning. He also cites the case of one Wisconsin flock owner who anticipates such losses in the fall of the year. This man digs a trench and surrounds it with a fence of poultry

Barley School to Be Held on Feb. 14

County Meeting Scheduled for Kaukauna High School Auditorium

A barley school will be held at the Kaukauna high school auditorium at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, Feb. 14, according to J. F. Magnus, Outagamie county agricultural agent, and James Judd, agricultural instructor at the high school, who are in charge of arrangements.

Farmers and barley buyers have been invited to the meeting, and farmers have been asked to bring in a sample of barley which will be examined for seed quality.

Varieties, diseases, fertilizers, rotations, and mixture of barley and oats and barley and wheat will be discussed by George Briggs, R. E.

Outagamie Farmers on Holstein Committees

Walter Wieckert, route 2, Appleton, is a member of the state calf committee which will report to Wisconsin black-and-white breeders on activities of the Holstein-Friesian association of Wisconsin at its forty-eighth annual convention at Waukesha Feb. 15 and 16. R. J. Schaefer, route 1, Appleton, is a member of the legislative committee which also will report at the state conclave.

Orchardists Face Keen Competition, Farmers are Told

Winnebago County Grower Speaks at Farm-Home Week Program

"It's the package that makes the first sale, but future sales depend entirely upon what's in the pack."

That's what N. A. Rasmussen, Winnebago county grower, told Wisconsin farmers yesterday afternoon on a Farm and Home week program at Madison. The veteran orchardist and gardener, who has been selling fruit and vegetables for more than 50 years, said that he learned a consumer always is willing to pay a good price for an honest pack, a pack in which the face is a true representation of the entire contents.

While the citrus fruit growers, the vegetable growers of the south and west and especially the western apple growers have learned this fact, Rasmussen thinks there is room for improvement in the middle west.

"Buy a box of western apples in any of our markets and you will find every apple uniform in size, color, and quality," he declared. "Buy a Wisconsin pack bushel basket of quality apples, regardless of where grown, and you will usually find them overfaced."

After having visited a great many markets in Wisconsin and upper Michigan, Rasmussen has found the same is true in most grades of vegetables, and especially so in tomatoes. From his experience in handling, in 1939, about 25,000 bushels of apples, 2,000 crates of cherries, small fruits and vegetables from about 40 acres including 5 acres of tomatoes, 3 acres of cantaloupe, 3 acres of squash, 10 acres of sweet corn, and a complete line of vegetables from field and greenhouse, Rasmussen is certain that the problem before the fruit and vegetable growers in Wisconsin is that of developing a market and then holding it.

"With western apples being advertised over the radio, in newspapers of our state and in magazines, the Wisconsin apple growers must be prepared to meet this competition," concluded the speaker.

Report Progress on Program to Promote State Dairy Sales

More than 65 million pounds of butterfat have been signed to date for the dairy promotion fund of the Wisconsin Dairy Industries association, state headquarters of the association announced today in a bulletin to County Agent J. F. Magnus.

Magnus reports that plans for the program are progressing in Outagamie county.

With the goal set at 400 million pounds, or the state's total annual butterfat production, the campaign to raise a voluntary fund by deducting 1 cent per pound on butterfat delivered during the month of August was brought to realization this week when six counties alone reported signups of butterfat totaling almost 14 million pounds.

Four Poultry Schools To Be Held Next Week

(Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau) Oshkosh—The second in a series of four winter poultry schools will be held at designated points in Winnebago county Tuesday and Wednesday, Feb. 13 and 14. R. C. Heffernan, county agricultural agent announced today. Prof. J. B. Hayes of the University of Wisconsin College of Agriculture again will lead the symposium.

On Tuesday afternoon a meeting will be held at Omro high school and in the evening at the county agent's office in the courthouse at Oshkosh. The Neenah City hall will be the scene of the Wednesday afternoon school and Woodman hall, Larsen, the place for that evening's discussion.

U. W. Agronomists Develop New Oats

Report Promising Variety Yields More Than Standard Sorts

A promising variety, an oat that yields more than standard sorts, has been added to Wisconsin's crop list.

It made its debut at a meeting of grain breeders and seed growers held at Madison yesterday afternoon in connection with Wisconsin Farm and Home week.

The new variety, which resists rust, and therefore continues with high yield, even in rust epidemic years, was christened Viciand. It has been tested for several years at the Wisconsin Agricultural Experiment station, and plans are being made to distribute this oat to growers of certified seed in 1941.

The parents of this variety came from foreign countries — Victoria from South America, and Richland, an Iowa selection from Kherson which came originally from Russia. The crossing of these two varieties and early selection was done by members of the United States Department of Agriculture. Several promising selections were made from this cross. The new variety, Viciand, was selected for Wisconsin conditions by H. L. Shands and B. D. Leith of the University of Wisconsin, with members of the plant pathology department of the college of agriculture cooperating. It is described as an early maturing variety that has most of the desirable qualities of State's Pride with the added advantages of resistance to the smuts and rusts. The kernel color is deeper yellow than State's Pride and stains more easily with weathering.

This Is The Appleton Post-Crescent's 20th Anniversary Year

Twenty Years Ago Today, the First Post-Crescent Was Published

Russia had withdrawn her peace proposals from Poland, and Eddie Fitzimmons, aspirant to Benny Leonard's title was meeting Jimmy Duffy in an eight round bout . . . "Up In Mable's Room" was scheduled for the Appleton theatre and Black Creek was making plans for a three-day Chautauqua . . . Fond du Lac was in a panic over the influenza epidemic . . . the First Ward Parent-Teachers' association was to be organized . . . Professor Custer left Lawrence for Akron, Ohio, and University of Wisconsin faculty members were given a salary increase . . . The Mt. Olive congregation began to plan for a new church edifice . . . Marquette defeated Notre Dame in basketball, 23-22 . . .

It was February 2, 1920, and the first issue of the Appleton Post-Crescent had just come off the press. There were eight pages in that edition and a front page box said: "it is inevitable that there will be some confusion in the delivery of papers for a few nights to come, and we would ask that our subscribers (about 7,200 at that time) kindly bear with us during this period."

Today, the net paid circulation of the Post-Crescent is more than 18,000.

Today, there are 89 full time employees working for the Post-Crescent (not including 180 regular carriers and 40 correspondents). This is approximately TWICE the number employed by BOTH the Post and Crescent just prior to the consolidation.

Today, the average daily cost of publication is $1,091.67, where twenty years ago it was $429.35.

Today, the Post-Crescent publishes editorial material and gives news and photo coverage of a type available in 1920 only to large-city dailies — if at all.

It goes without saying that we are deeply appreciative of the widespread acceptance given to the Post-Crescent, as indicated by these figures. We are proud, too, because that acceptance would never have come had we not deserved it.

We look forward to the opportunity that lies ahead of us — the opportunity of being more useful, more informative and more entertaining than ever before.

In a game that saw the lead change hands a dozen or more times, the Lutz Ice company basketball team last night earned a tie for first place with the Sorensen Bakers in the Y-City league. The score was 28 to 24. The game was bitterly fought and the losers had 17 fouls and the winners 16. The Bakers used a strong zone defense and the Ice men an aggressive man-to-man defense. Offensively, the fast break featured.

The first period ended with the score at 8-4. The lead changed hands several times in the second quarter and the half ended at 13-11. In the third period, the Ice men had garnered a 20 to 19 lead and the game entered the final quarter. The Ice men nursed the point edge to the final 41 minutes when Herb Lutz, who directs the destinies of the Ice men, canned three shots from the center of the court and clinched the game.

Besides Herbie, Krause and Woner played top ball for the Ice men. For the Bakers, Werner, Paulie and Ogilvie did the best work. Don Powers was missing from the Baker lineup.

Valley Sports improved their hold on third place with a 30 to 21 victory over the Town Taxi. The Taxi led 10 to 8 at the quarter but the Sports had a 17 to 15 margin at the half. In the third quarter the Sports' lead was 24 to 20 with the Taxi going scoreless in the final period. Long shots from the field decided the outcome.

C. Bowers, Westberg and Verbruggen each scored four goals for the Taxi. Arnold had five for the Taxi.

In the other game, the Pond Sports downed the Central Paper team, 32 to 20. It was the eighth straight defeat for the Neenah team. Ponds led 11 to 5 at the quarter, 19 to 10 at the half and 24 to 12 at the third quarter.

Besch scored 10 points for the each for the Ponds.

TONIGHT'S GAMES
Sheboygan North at Green Bay West
Green Bay East at Sheboygan Central
Manitowish at Oshkosh
Appleton at Fond du Lac

APPLETON High school basketball team will set about evening matters with several Fox River Valley conference schools which defeated it during the first round, when the Terrors invade Fond du Lac tonight. The game marks the start of second round play.

Appleton and Fond du Lac clashed early in December with the Cardinals annexing a 25 to 15 win. Appleton was slow in reacting to situations and Fond du Lac had a couple chaps who were "hot" and that accounts for the score.

Since then the Terrors have improved considerably. They are a smarter team if not much faster and they play rather steady ball and don't get panicky at the score. Against Green Bay West last week they won the hard way by coming from behind. The week previous they almost won the same way against Manitowish.

In seven games, Fond du Lac has scored just one point more than Appleton. The Fondy defense is slightly better, however. It has held opponents to 160 points while Appleton has held them to 176.

In other conference games tonight, Sheboygan North will be seen at Green Bay West, Green Bay East will go to Sheboygan Central and Manitowish invades Oshkosh to test the new Indian combination. The latter game will be of most interest to the league because Manitowish has possibilities and will be a fairly good test of the new Nussbaum squad. Oshkosh lost four, men with the close of the semester.

FONDY POINTED
Fond du Lac-Fond du Lac will attempt to snap a three-game losing streak when Appleton invades the Cardinal gymnasium for a Fox River Valley conference basketball game Friday night.

Frank Shaughnessy May Succeed Judge Landis

MacPhail Blasts At Judge Landis

Says Present Farm Situation in Baseball Is Hopeless Confusion

Boston (AP)—The present farm situation in baseball, in the opinion of President Larry MacPhail of the Brooklyn Dodgers, is "one of seemingly hopeless confusion."

"And if something isn't done about it in a hurry," he said in a blast at Kenesaw Mountain Landis, the game's high commissioner, during a speech last night at the Boston baseball writer's dinner. "The minors may be injured and years required to repair the damage."

Labelling Landis "a bush league" in comparison with John Brown, the great abolitionist, MacPhail declared he had received telegrams from "the presidents of 15 minor leagues that indicate that there is grave doubt whether they can operate unless the commissioner's recent bulletin is modified."

Brown, he said, had to raid Harper's Ferry to free a few slaves while Landis released 90-odd baseball serfs from bondage with a stroke of the pen, following this act with a seven-point manifesto wiping out nine farm systems and about 100 working agreements.

"In the matter of Judge Landis versus the farm system, he sits as prosecutor, judge and jury, and there is no appeal. Either he is dealing out justice or he is engaging in a 'witch hunt' in which the innocent will burn along with the guilty."

Junior Ski Riders to Show at Ladysmith
Ladysmith (AP)—The fourth annual Wisconsin junior ski jumping championships will be held here Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 17-18, it was announced today by John Trudelle, WPA recreation supervisor in Rusk county. All current title-holders will defend their titles, Trudelle said.

Badger Cagers Are Victims of Semester Exams

Bob Schwartz, Two Reserves Fail to Survive Scholastic Tests

CHICAGO (AP)—All the pre-cincts haven't been heard from but the outcome of midterm examinations may have a profound effect on the Big Ten basketball race.

Deficient grades have removed three players each from the squads at Illinois and Wisconsin, including a regular on each team. A few more blows like that and the title prospects of several teams would be damaged.

The Badgers lost Bob Schwartz of Madison, varsity forward who ranks seventh in individual scoring with 41 points, just 10 behind teammate Gene Englund, league-leading scorer. Englund survived the scholastic tests in good shape. Other Wisconsin players lost in the classroom were Bob Sims, second string guard and Bob Nelson, reserve forward. Another player, Lester Sander, sophomore center, has left school.

Illinois lost Bob Richmond, regular guard; Bob O'Neill, second string center and Rex Sherman, sophomore forward. All failed to make the scholastic grade.

Wisconsin is tied for seventh in the conference race with one victory in four games and Illinois has split four games for a fourth place tie.

These two teams and three others move into action tomorrow night. Wisconsin engages Michigan State at East Lansing and Illinois invades South Bend to play Notre Dame. Chicago plays host to Loyola, Indiana meets DePaul university in the Chicago Coliseum and Ohio State plays Butler at Indianapolis.

Hollywood—Publication of an "official" news story listing Hollywood's upper-bracket salaries for 1938, has had its inevitable result. Claudette Colbert, "fall-girl" because she topped all players with her total of $304,394, is being buried under an avalanche of sizzling letters from down - and - outers. Quite naturally, they burn at the thought of anyone getting so much when they have so little.

At the risk of being inconsistent (like all columnists, I've been guilty now and then, of mentioning salary figures), I want to protest the publication of that annual news release from the income tax records. It does Hollywood incalculable harm—without doing anyone particular good. It's so impressive, so official, so head-lined, that it's bound to inflame justifiable envy on the part of the have-nots who read it—especially since it fails to tell all the facts.

If the story must be printed, why not complete it by also listing the amount of income tax paid by those high-salaried stars? Why not let the public know that a good two-thirds of their earnings are turned back to the government in direct taxation to finance the public enterprises from which you and I benefit? The style of the incendiary who mounts a soap box to indict a social order like this allows one girl to make $200,000 a year, would be considerably cramped if he also had to point out the fact that $200,000 of that sum went back into the very government relief projects that are feeding his needy listeners.

IDOL CHATTER: It's a cinch bet that 80 per cent of 1939's screen deb's will be 1940's deb's.

Fidler thought of anyone getting so much when they have so little.

Pegler Takes General Swing At Leadership of A.F. of L.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—Most speakers and writers on the subject of labor organization invariably modify their criticism of racketeering in the unions of the American Federation of Labor with the proviso that, of course, the organization as a whole and its subsidiaries are governed by able, conscientious men and the dishonest union official is a rare exception to a high standard. This has become a formula, adopted as a means of showing that the speaker or writer is not hostile to labor, with a capital L, and only hopes that, for labor's own sake, steps will be taken to delouse the structure of the vermin which crawl in its walls.

From that opinion I have to dissent to the extreme of saying that, in my opinion, the American Federation of Labor is rotten with extortion and racketeering, much of which is presumed to be legal only because nobody has ever taken the trouble to show that it is illegal, and much of which is just plain criminal.

I have recently named two racketeers in control of two big A. F. of L. international unions, but I could name a hundred thieves and gangsters, embezzlers and terrorists who hold office in unions of the American Federation of Labor. They infest the A. F. of L. to such a degree that the organization has negligently lost its right to public respect as a labor movement and has become the front for a privileged terror obviously comparable to the mafia of Sicily. The mafia, too, began with high motives, but as it developed power became a terrorist organization.

The A. F. of L. issues charters to subsidiary unions, which, in turn, issue charters to locals, but the parent organization claims to have no authority over its subsidiaries of any degree, and the federal government, for reasons of political tact, refuses to interfere on behalf of the rank and file members or the public interest.

The bureau of internal revenue, which hatters honest individual citizens for a few dollars more of income tax and compels them to produce old checks, stubs, contracts and receipts in worrisome and ill-intended inquiries into private affairs, which are no business of any government agency, has a fixed policy of ignoring the books of labor racketeers, even though they are notoriously crooked, merely because they possess union charters.

Union Income Is Not Even Questioned

A union is held to be non-taxable as to its income unless that income inures to the benefit of individuals, but the possession of a charter is deemed to be a sufficient guarantee that the funds are honestly administered. Therefore the accounts are not even questioned, while business firms and individuals are compelled to submit to the most searching and often the most impudent and insincere inspections.

A greedy racketeer up from the pandering and bootlegging trades is protected from inquiry as to his thievings and his extortions by the assumption that the funds of the union of which he is boss have not

Green Had Nothing To Say About Willie Bioff

The rottenness of the American Federation of Labor is demonstrated in one dramatic particular by the case of Willie Bioff, whose history need not be revived again just now. Did William Green, the president of the American Federation of Labor, say one word about Bioff when his record was disclosed, when it was shown that this fugitive from a jail sentence in Chicago had become, by appointment and not by any vote of the union rank and file, the boss of the theatrical and movie trades, or when it developed that he had become a rich man on a modest union salary? Mr. Green did not.

But Bioff is only one of many gangster labor leaders in the A. F. of L. not counting the rodent enemies of labor and of the public who have been driven out by Tom Dewey in New York.

So I don't subscribe to the proposition that the leadership of the A. F. of L. unions is, on the whole,

Says Anti-Trust Body 'Clearing Houses' are Needed in Each State

Chicago—(AP)—Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general in charge of anti-trust investigations, said Thursday his division needed at least one representative in each state to act as a local clearing house for complaints.

He addressed the twenty-fifth annual meeting of the Illinois Agricultural association.

Arnold said experience in anti-trust investigations and prosecutions in the building and other industries had led to several discoveries:

That vigorous investigation brought results far beyond actual cases prosecuted; that the public understood and supported honest efforts to prosecute impartially; that when a staff was actually operating in a community voluntary assistance sprang up from business men, farmers, consumers and state authorities, and that a man was needed in each state to "maintain these gains."

Arnold said such state agents would keep in touch with trade associations, consumers' organizations, labor and manufacturers and function as clearing houses for complaints and "as listening posts and channels of reference for these complaints."

Mrs. Morgenthau and Justice Murphy Get Refunds on U. S. Taxes

Washington—(AP)—Supreme Court Justice Murphy and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, Jr., were listed today among thousands of taxpayers who gave Uncle Sam too much money and got some of it back.

Murphy was awarded a $1,788 refund on his income tax and Mrs. Morgenthau, wife of the treasury secretary, $536 in gift taxes.

These rebates were a tiny part of a $49,413,688 tax refund melon cut by the treasury, during the fiscal year ended June 30. The largest refund was $1,345,292 to the trustee of the International Match Corporation, New York.

The many smaller ones went to such people as Alfred E. Smith, $789; Frederick B. Smit, Jr., the Chicagoan who lives in an "iron lung" and his wife, $1,840; Ambassador Joseph E. Grew, Tokyo, $12,880; and Marlene Dietrich, the movie star, $37,902.

The refunds were due chiefly to such things as bad addition and failure to take various kinds of legal deductions.

Among the larger refunds was $948,114 to the Brown-Williamson Tobacco Corporation, Louisville, Ky. This represented over-payment of tobacco taxes.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

Periods of relaxation and scientific facials help greatly in keeping skin exquisitely textured and toned. Lovely ELLEN DREW takes excellent care of her skin.

There is nothing like a professional I am acquainted with one beauty sional facial, given by skilled who buys two lipsticks, two shades hands, to shake a woman out of face powder and two nail polishes. February blues! Just to ishes each season. No more. All-loll comfortably in a chair, while ways, the effect she creates is chic, nible fingers beautify your face, and this is because her selection is enough to restore your interest of make-up is wisely made with an eye to her wardrobe and the other eye on the success shade of the season. Naturally if you can treatments but now that signs of spring appear, treat yourself to shades, do so, for matching or an hour in a salon for a thorough skin reconditioning, before you wear has many possibilities of pleasing efforts which create beauty.

Watch how the operator applies the creams and manipulates the muscles of your face. Seek her advice as to what your skin needs. A conscientious operator will not try to load you down with a lot of useless beauty aids — she will endeavor to correct dryness if your skin is dry, banish wrinkles if they are there, or teach you how to treat an excess oily condition.

The thorough cleansing, softening and bleaching which your skin needs during a good facial will bring out a skin tone which you never expected was there. It is this tone which you should match with freshly mixed powder, a becoming rouge and lipstick.

If your make-up budget is limited take time to select make-up which will harmonize with most of the colors you wear. Extreme shades are for those women who can easily afford to be faddists.

About Masques

If you do not have a skin masque at home, now is a good time to invest in one. If you use it once every ten days or two weeks, you will find your skin retaining a lovely freshness which is not possible to attain otherwise. But you must seek professional advice in choosing the masque formula. Some masques are too astringent for dry or sensitive skins, while others are too comets plicated to use in a home treatment. A knowing salesgirl can help you a lot, or the operator who gives you your salon facial.

I have a recipe in leaflet form for a gelatine or egg masque facial which you may give yourself at home. You may have either upon request if you write for it. This paper and enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope.

Time Schedule Best Cure For Slow-Moving Children

BY ANGELO PATRI

Regularity and punctuality are school virtues. Of course there are others such as thoroughness, cooperation and industry, but this time I would like to accent those two because they are fundamental to success in school, and everywhere else. That is why school makes them important enough to be called virtues.

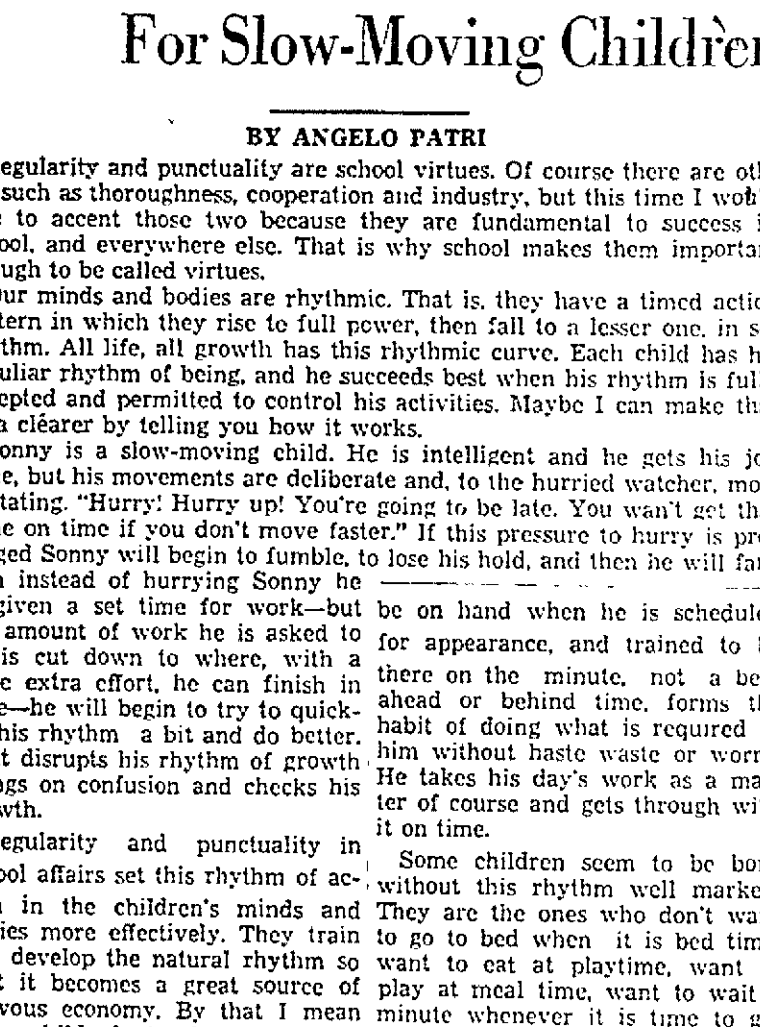

Our minds and bodies are rhythmic. That is, they have a timed action pattern in which they rise to full power, then fall to a lesser one, in set rhythm. All life, all growth has this rhythmic curve. Each child has his peculiar rhythm of being, and he succeeds best when his rhythm is fully accepted and permitted to control his activities. Maybe I can make that idea clearer by telling you how it works.

Sonny is a slow-moving child. He is intelligent and he gets his job done, but his movements are deliberate and, to the hurried watcher, most irritating. "Hurry! Hurry up! You're going to be late. You won't get that done on time if you don't move faster." If this pressure to hurry is prolonged Sonny will begin to fumble, to lose his hold, and then he will fail. In instead of hurrying Sonny he is given a set time for work—but the amount of work he is asked to do is cut down to where, with a little extra effort, he can finish in time—he will begin to try to quicken his rhythm a bit and do better. That disrupts his rhythm of growth brings on confusion and checks his growth.

Regularity and punctuality in school affairs set this rhythm of action in the children's minds and bodies more effectively. They train and develop the natural rhythm so that it becomes a great source of nervous economy. By that I mean that a child who has been trained to be on hand when he is scheduled for appearance, and trained to be there on the minute, not a beat ahead or behind time, forms the habit of doing what is required of him without haste waste or worry. He takes his day's work as a matter of course and gets through with it on time.

Some children seem to be born without this rhythm well marked. They are the ones who don't want to go to bed when it is bed time, want to eat at playtime, want to play at meal time, want to wait a minute whenever it is time to get busy. For these children the clock must be master. A time schedule, strictly followed, will help them more than any amount of pressure in the form of "Hurry! Hurry!" or "Very well, you can't have any dessert tonight." Just set the clock and quietly, firmly, hold that squirming child to schedule. It will try your patience to the breaking point for a time, but keep at it and he will form the habit of regularity because his body will take it over and force him to accept it.

Your stomach tells you when it is lunch time. Your time sense, set by years of experience, tells you that it is close to the end of your day and you begin to tie up the last threads. Habit, established by regularity and punctuality, takes a load off one's mind. It works on the side of health. It is what makes all the difference between usefulness and helplessness. Players Often Quit Before They're Beat

BY ELY CULBERTSON

In the play of many more or less legitimate contracts, it becomes obvious that mere technique, however flawless, cannot avail. In such cases too many players surrender without a struggle. They overlook the fact that the defenders can hardly be certain of the situation actually existing. They naively proceed on the theory that their dilemma is apparent. The declarer in today's hand was made of sterner stuff.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 club (11) Pass 1 diamond (21) Pass
1 no trump Pass 2 no trump Pass
3 no trump Pass Pass Pass

(1) With no biddable suit, South anticipates a no trump contract and tries to stave off a club lead.

(2) North would like to bid one and one-half no trump, therefore compromises on a shaded diamond response.

West made the normal opening of the spade jack. Dummy played low (as part of the plan that had formed in declarer's mind) and South won with the queen, attempting to create in West's mind the impression that East had the ace. A diamond to the ace was the first play of declarer, and now the low club was boldly played from dummy. East ducked, South played the ten and West won with the queen. Holding the 10-8 of spades under dummy's K-9, West decided that another spade lead was unpropitious. His shift to a small heart cannot be severely criticized. Declarer's ace smothered East's jack, and next a low diamond was led, which West was able to count declarer's potential tricks at this stage, he would, of course, have shifted to clubs as the only hope. But, from his angle, there was quite a different hope, that on the lead of a second spade declarer would "guess wrong" and go up with dummy's king on the assumption that the opening lead was from A-J-10-8. So he led a spade, declarer gobbled up the trick, cashed his two good diamonds and finessed against the queen of hearts. When the ten held the trick, the king of hearts and the third spade completed the nine tricks necessary.

VARYING CONDITIONS

Whether to walk with a departing visitor down the path to the gate or around the corner of the public hall in an apartment house, or whether it is better to say goodbye at the front door, are questions that must be answered with qualifying "ifs." If the house is a formal one, the hostess rings a bell for whoever is on duty at the front door to help the visitor on with her (or his) coat and to open the door. If there is only one visitor and she is a woman and if there is no maid to open the door for her and ring for the elevator, the hostess goes as far as the elevator (or as far as out on her front steps). But if any other visitors are present, she says goodbye to the one who is departing without herself leaving the room, since this would be deserting her other guests or guest.

If the host is present, he escorts departing visitors — either women or men — to the elevator or to the front steps. But if there are many guests and some one is on duty at the door, he too stays in the living room.

When a Girl Pays Her Own Way

Dear Mrs. Post: The other noon another girl and I went to lunch in a favorite tearoom, and quite by accident saw there two men we knew; in fact, one is my best beau. We joined them at their table, and at their invitation. After we'd all finished, we girls got up and walked ahead, letting the men take care

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

Vera's case is pathetic. It can be ascribed to the fact she failed to realize that men's protests of love may have certain mental reservations. Vera's boy friend told her he loved her (but for tonight only, was the unvoiced qualification). Poor Vera thought this love was a permanent thing. If you girls don't want to make Vera's tragic error, be sure your sweetheart's character and morals harmonize with his saccharine protests of love. And rate yourself by my "TEST FOR THE GIRL FRIEND" if you wish to know what men seek in the girls they really marry.

CASE P-171: Vera K., aged 18, is a senior in high school.
"When I was 16, I began going with a boy two years older than I," she began.
"We fell in love. At least I did, and he told me he loved me, too. Our parents thought we were too young to get married, and they also wanted me to finish high school. We thought it wouldn't be any harm if we didn't wait till we were married. So now I am going to have a baby. I asked my sweetheart what I should do.

"He said he would leave me alone. He never said a word about what I should do. He said I could find some other man who would make me a better husband.
"Now he has started to go around with other girls. He doesn't seem to want to help me at all. Dr. Crane, I can't go to my mother. I would kill her. She is old and not well. I still love this boy and I can't believe he doesn't love me any more. Dr. Crane, do you think he will come back to me?"

DIAGNOSIS:
After a girl has made such a mistake, there is no particular merit in pointing out how she could have avoided it. But for the benefit of thousands of other high school and college girls, Vera's case warrants a concise dissection and analysis from the psychological angle.

In the first place, don't believe

Men are Behind Times in Their Ideas of How Wives Should Act

BY DOROTHY DIX

It would do a lot to promote domestic happiness and discourage divorce if men would only forget the Rules for the Proper Conduct of Wives that Adam formulated and would bring their theories on the subject up to date.

It is a curious thing that no matter how modernistic the average man is, nor how advanced his opinions are on other matters, his ideas of how to deal with wives still have whiskers on them. They are cave-man stuff. He is still puttering around in the Dark Ages so far as women are concerned, and the hardest thing that a wife ever has to do is to induce her husband to be his age and realize that he is living in 1940 instead of prehistoric times.

Of course, men will deny this, and with honesty, because they don't know themselves that they have inherited Grandpa's ideas about how to treat wives, along with his Roman nose and the old home farm. But such is the case, and that loud noise you hear as household goods being broken and smashed is being made by married couples fighting out the issue to a finish.

It is because husbands are victims of the ancient superstition that a man should be the head of a house that starts more family feuds and keeps more wives sore and peevish than any one thing. Because that wasn't what the intelligent, educated woman, who had held down a good business job, expected of marriage. She thought it would be a fifty-fifty affair. She thought she would be her husband's partner, with an equal voice in managing the home, and that her opinions would be asked and respected. And when she finds out that she is expected to just be a yes-yes woman, and to have to ask permission to join a club or go to see her mother, it makes her wish she hadn't done it.

The irony of the situation is that, with the exception of a few domestic tyrants, the man who fights so bitterly with his wife for the empty honor of being the head of the house doesn't care a rap about it. He just insists on it because someone he thinks he should be it, and in reality he is glad enough for his wife to take the responsibility of deciding household problems. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred when a wife asks her husband's opinion he passes the buck and says: "Do as you please," but he demands to be asked, and the asking is what riles Friend Wife.

It is the same theory that it is right and proper for a wife to show her subservience to her husband that makes so many men refuse to give their wives an allowance and make them come like beggars to them for every cent and that causes the financial plank to be just as rickety a one in the home as it is in the government.

Yet if you would ask one of these men if he thought he saved anything by doing out expense money in nickels and dimes instead of giving it to his wife in a lump sum he would say "no." If you would ask him if his wife wasn't honest enough to be trusted with a few dollars he would say: "Certainly she is." If you ask him if she wasn't a thrifty spender he would say: "She can get twice as much out of a dollar as I can."

If you ask him, then, why he didn't let his wife be the family cashier and save her the humiliation of being a mendicant, all that YESTERADY: Cecily Trenton, Bob's first wife, lightly dismisses their "extemporaneous" marriage of five years ago. But the news has stunned Sue.

Chapter 19
"Just A Lark"

What did it matter now? The question tolled in Sue's mind all that long day; that endless day when she paced through her rooms feverishly or lay face down on her bed; when she forced herself to speak gayly to her friends on the telephone, breaking an engagement to lunch with Barbara, explaining to Pats that she couldn't shop with her as she had promised later in the afternoon; when she sat at the table and forgot her untouched plate, rose and wandered upstairs under the impression she had eaten a meal; what did it matter now?

It mattered to this extent: She was married to a stranger! She had thought she knew Bob; realized his faults, appreciated his virtues, respected him, trusted him, loved him; not loved him as she had always hoped to love the man she married, but warmly, genuinely. A simple person, the man she had believed she knew, incapable of the sort of deceit which had been practiced upon her; incapable — oh, completely incapable of exposing her to the shock of this casual discovery of Cecily — of a former marriage!

"What to do? What to do? She found herself whispering the words. The sound aroused her from a trance of thought. She looked down at her shaking hands. They held a pair of smart little exordes. "What am I doing with these?" she wondered dazedly. Dressing, of course; dressing to go away — somewhere, anywhere — before Bob came home.

"A suitcase—I could pack a suitcase with what I'd need for a few days. Chicago—that train goes at eight-thirty; Bob might get home before then. But I could say I was going out to dinner—drive around somewhere until it was time."

She was on her feet, quivering with the joy of a trapped creature as the thought of escape. Then she sank wearily back into her chair.

Of what use to run away? She and Bob must talk; must plan. If not tonight, then next week, a month from now; eventually they must discuss this hideous thing Bob must explain... but how could Bob explain the unexplainable; any more than she could forgive the unpardonable? Or no—it wasn't a question of forgiveness. She could have forgiven the man she thought she had married—anything; but this stranger.

She tried to call up Bob's face before her mind: the laughing blue eyes, the thick blond hair, the lean jaw with its crease which in a girl would have been a dimple.

Cecily had dimples, but not that kind. Hers were little dents that twinkled in and out of the fair flesh. A silvery, starlike, twinkling person, Cecily, for all her tall slenderness! How could Bob have loved a small black-eyed girl like herself after Cecily?

The sweet spring afternoon crawled by; flew by. When she remembered that evening would bring Bob, the hours passed like so many minutes. When her tired brain tried to grapple with her problem, the minutes were like hours.

"Bad News"

Suddenly there was the sound of rapid feet on the stairs. Bob! Her dazed eyes went to her watch, that daintily jewelled trifle Bob had given her last Christmas. It was... it couldn't be six o'clock already!

"Sue! Where are you, dinner's all got home in time for supper after all. I drove like the devil... Sue!" He whispered her name in a terrified voice. "What's happened? Oh, my God, darling, are you ill? Have you hurt yourself? Have you had bad news?" He was across the room, he was kneeling beside her chair, his arms drawing her toward him. "Tell Bob, darling!"

heart! Tell your husband what's making you look like that!"

Her long tured sigh seemed torn out of her body. For a moment she leaned against him, feeling the whole affair to have been a nightmare from which she had just awakened. The dear familiar presence reassured her for a few blissful seconds; the good smell of mingled tobacco, shaving cream and the faint pealike odor of his coat; the feel of his firm cheek, the tender clasp of his arms.

It was Bob himself who broke the spell. The fright he had felt at sight of her ravaged face jerked at his nerves.

"Sue! What has happened?" She moved away from him, back as far as her chair and the length of his arms would allow.

"There was a woman here today, Bob. She says her name is Cecily Meade Trenton. She says she was married to you."

There was a long silence. Slowly he loosed his clasp, let his arms fall to his sides.

"Cecily? Good heavens, Cecily!" His voice came in a rasping undertone.

"You know her, then? What she said is true?"

He nodded almost irritably, as if she were a child who failed to understand the obvious.

"It's true, all right. If you mean that she and I were married a long time ago. Or if marriage can mean a brief three weeks' madness."

She huddled in the low chair, her eyes dark pools of misery.

"Why didn't you tell me, Bob? Why did you let me hear it—from her?"

He walked to the window and stood looking down on the garden for a long moment before he answered. Even when he began to

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

DOUBLE POPULATION

Across the river from Argentina's capital city is the republic of Uruguay. It is on the northern side of the River Plate.

Uruguay is a little country, compared to Argentina. You could put it in one corner of Argentina, and hardly know it was there.

A scene in Montevideo, the capital of Uruguay.

Let that fact give the wrong idea of size, let's put the matter in another way. Uruguay is only one-fifteenth as large as Argentina, but it is larger than several countries of Europe. It contains over 72,000 square miles, which means it has a bit more area than the state of Missouri.

The population of Uruguay has been growing fast and has passed the 2,000,000 mark. The country has twice as many people today as 30 years ago.

Uruguay doesn't have mountains, but there are high hills, some of them rising to a height of nearly one-third of a mile. Only one important river—the Negro—is inside the country. Another river—the Uruguay—is on the western border; it joins the Parana to form the River Plate.

Palm trees are natives of Uruguay, and the country also has a good supply of poplar, willow, acacia and certain other trees. The broad prairies are bright at times with wild flowers.

The animals of the country include deer, foxes, wildcats, water hogs and alligators. Some forests have pumas and jaguars.

Large ostrich-like birds called rheas run wild in a few parts of the land. The reha (also known as the "American ostrich") does not equal the true ostrich of Africa in size. A reha has three toes on each foot, but a true ostrich has only two.

Uruguay has a fine, mild climate. In the coldest months (July and August) the temperature is usually between 35 and 60 degrees above zero Fahrenheit. The people hardly know what snow and frost are like.

The warmest months of the year in Uruguay are January and February, with the temperature running from 60 to 90 degrees above zero.

The paragraph above may sound mixed up on winter and summer, but I remind you of what I said about Argentina last Monday. Like Argentina, Uruguay is south of the equator.

Montevideo is the capital of Uruguay. It has about the same number of people as the city of Vancouver. (For Travel section of your scrapbook.)
